U. N. 'Digs In' for 2 More Years of Cold War

Assembly Leaders Gloomy

Claim Dispute Blocks Progress

LAKE SUCCESS—(AP)—The United Nations is digging in for at least two more years of the cold war between Russia and the United States.

High United Nations leaders here hope the world organization can hit its stride after that.

This is the concensus of private talks with U. N. delegates and leaders who came back from the Paris meeting of the General assembly somewhat discouraged.

No responsible leader here wants to talk about the U.N. future on the record—except in general terms. But the conversations are going on in offices and in luxurious lounge where delegates and secretariat people meet.

Most authorities say that if Russia and the United States could agree on a world settlement, it would be a shot in the arm for the U. N.

In the absence of such agreement, they add, the U.N. has to struggle along as best it can.

The best outlook by these forward-thinking officials is that the cold war will keep up its hot pace for fully two more years.

During that two-year period, these leaders say the U.N. can tackle only those projects which do not touch on the east-west disagreement.

These are extremely few. The U.N. leaders plan to seek them out and do what they can.

No one at U.N. headquarters even has hinted that he expects war at any time.

NO WAR EXPECTED

Possibility of war in the near future is shrugged off by U.N. leaders and delegates with the repeated comment that no one wants war; that no one is prepared for war, and that there is no need for war.

The U.N. has its own system for feeling the pulse of the average man to see whether it beats fast or slow for the U.N.

One official close to this survey said the reaction of people in the United States now is one of cynical discouragement.

He said U. S. citizens were downcast by the record of the Paris assembly, where much time was spent in talking and no progress was made toward solving the world's problems.

But he indicated that the U. S. citizens certainly have not written off the U. N. They still are stringing along in the hope it will succeed finally.

Dutch Driven From Village

BATAVIA, Java—(AP)—An underground broadcast late yesterday said Indonesian Republican guerrillas have slashed into the communications network around Cheribon and have driven the Dutch from Patjitan on Java's south coast.

The Republican's radio claim was not confirmed by official Dutch sources. It was made a day after United Nations military observers reported Netherlands troops were proving insufficient to stem sabotage by guerrillas in north central Java or even to maintain order in the towns

According to the Republican broadcast, the guerrilla forces which captured Patjitan, engaged the Dutch in heavy fighting for four hours. Other guerrilla units gained control of Djatibarang, a rail junction city 20 miles northwest of Cheribon, the broadcast said.

'Gift to Needy' Causes Blushes

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Surprise mingled with embarrassment yesterday at the news that the Maria Eva Duarte De Peron Social Assistant Foundation of Argentina is donating clothing to care for 600 needy Washington children

Embarrassment was the reaction among state department officials. Although they declined comment, the officials were obviously concerned over the Argentine gift which seemed to imply the United States is unable to look after its own needy.

Vaughn Silent on 3rd Term

Mayor Roy W. Vaughn said yesterday he was too busy with problems of immediate concern to think about who's going to run for mayor in the May primaries.

His statement came in response to reports that he will seek renomination on the Republican ticket in May.

Candidates for city offices must file their petitions with the election board Feb. 2, less than three weeks away.

Declining to confirm or deny reports of his candidacy, the mayor said:

"There are too many things happening right now to look that far ahead."

The mayor apparently referred to the task of finding a new service-safety director and enough funds to meet the city's operating bills this year. Service-Safety Director Earl T. Garrison resigned Friday, effective Feb. 15, following a dispute with council over pay boosts for himself and other city employes.

Mayor Vaughn is in his second two-year term.

LOCKE MENTIONED

There are rumors that former Mayor William J. Locke and Ex-councilman Russell Porch also are eyeing the GOP mayoralty nomination. Locke retired from the office three years ago in favor of Vaughn.

Porch, former councilman from the First ward, now is employed in Warren but he retains his residence in Mansfield.

The Democrats, who haven't elected a mayor since Claude M. Hunter left the office in 1939, are scouting around for a candidate.

There are reports that Charles O. Anglin, former councilman who was defeated for mayor two years ago, may be a candidate again. Sixth ward Councilman Nelson Swihart is another possibility.

All nine councilmen, a council president, city solicitor, and treasurer will be elected next November.

No one has announced for any of the offices, and political leaders believe there will be little activity before the last week in January. Municipal candidates need only five signatures on their nominating petitions and they can be obtained in short order, Party men pointed out.

Employment Slash Cited

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Claims for unemployment compensation in Ohio took a 48 per cent jump last month.

Frank J. Collopy, administrator of the State Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, yesterday said the 48,447 claims filed last month represented a 48 per cent increase from November and a 50 per cent jump from the corresponding period in 1947.

Collopy said: "There is no indicating that the peak has been reached."

He added, however, that "the bureau is in no position to predict the future employment picture, but only to cite the facts on the existing situation."

Collopy said the number of claims normally filed in the fall season increases, but the rise last year began earlier than usual.

Greek Premier Resigns Post

ATHENS —(AP)— The palace announced last night that King Paul has accepted the resignation of Premier Themstokles Sophoulis, who is 88 and ill.

There has been a week long dispute in the cabinet over social measures, over broadening of the government's base, and over appointment of a supreme commander for the fight against communist rebels. Sophoulis has been premier, heading a cabinet of Populists and Liberals since Sept., 1947.

The resignation means that both Greece and Turkey, which receive American dollars to fight communism, are without governments. The Turkish government fell Friday because of the high cost of living.

Confer on Harsh Peace Conditions

NANKING —(AP)— The policy-making executive Yuan of China scheduled an emergency meeting for today to discuss the harsh peace talk conditions laid down by the Red radio Friday night, Associated Press reported last night.

The meeting comes on the heels of a series of conferences held by the cabinet and other government bodies faced with the problem of complying with communist demands or fleeing Nanking. The Reds followed up their broadcast with the capture of Tientsin yesterday.

Deepening the government gloom was authoritative word that both the United States and Britain had declined to use their good offices to seek peace talks. There appeared no reason to believe that France or Russia would heed similar pleas.

Conquest of Tientsin after a month of siege and a day of artillery bombardment cost the government another 60,000 of its dwindling troops and freed an estimated 150,000 Reds for new operations.

4 Missouri Mules Go to Inauguration

LAMAR, Mo. — (AP) — The four Missouri mules which will represent the birthplace of President Truman in the inaugural parade, started for Washington Saturday.

The four long eared animals — Beck, Polly, Duke and Blondie— were loaded aboard a truck driven by Billy Bob Adams, a brother of Claude Adams, the owner.

Late Friday Lamar got a preview of what the mules would look like in the parade The mules, decked out in harness with shiny fittings, pulled a white wagon around the square several times.

Drive Tops Quota

The Richland County Tuberculosis association has reached $14,677 in its Christmas Seal sale, exceeding its quota by $167, Mrs. Margaret Adams, executive secretary, reported today.

Funds are still coming in, Mrs. Adams said, and further contributions are welcome

But How About Fuel Dealers?

Mansfielders Save Cash; West Shivers

As another raging blizzard crossed from Canada into the middle west late yesterday, school and hospital officials in Mansfield pointed to their winter fuel costs with elation.

Glenn L. Robinson, city schools business manager, revealed an estimated saving of 35 per cent on school fuel. (Snowdrifts have closed several highways in Idaho and Utah).

Wayne Copeland, superintendent of General hospital, reported a saving of $330 on coal bills at the hospital. (Sub-zero temperatures were predicted for the Great Plains area)

The principal objections to the balmy weather enjoyed in Ohio this winter come from the younger element, most of whom would rather use those Christmas sleds and ice skates. (Emergency conditions in the midwest were just beginning to ease off as the new storm whipped out of the north.)

For most Mansfielders, the spring-like weather has meant a slight easing on their fuel bills although not to the extent of that found in larger buildings. (In northern Utah the latest snowstorm added to the one or two feet of snow already on the ground from the previous display of wintery elements.)

But all was not dark on the weather front. In Dubuque, Ia., the Junior Chamber of Commerce placed an order for 10 carloads of Sioux City snow to be used in a ski meet scheduled for Jan. 23.

Previously, Sioux City residents had been paying to have snow hauled away.

Hawkins Gets Ohio CIO Post

Joseph Hawkins of Mansfield was elected one of the Ohio CIO council's 17 vice-presidents yesterday as right-wingers recorded a sweeping victory.

Jack Kroll of Cincinnati was re-elected as president of the group.

Hawkins is president of Local 711, United Electrical Workers (Westinghouse) and sparked a drive to eliminate communists from union office by steering through a constitutional amendment calling for the signing of non-communist affidavits by union officers.

Ohioan Joins Spy Hunters

WASHINGTON —(AP)— House Democrats have picked five lawyers to serve on the un-American Activities committee under a policy of restricting committee membership to "experienced members of the bar"

Democratic leaders said that the lineup of Democrats on the committee, center of many a controversy on and off Capitol Hill, will be:

Rep. John S. Wood of Georgia, chairman; and Reps. Francis E. Walter of Pennsylvania, John McSweeney of Ohio, Burr P. Harrison of Virginia and Morgan M. Moulder of Missouri.

Reps Rankin (Miss.) and Hebert (La.) were dropped from the committee because of the new all-lawyers policy and another resolution barring a chairman of a major committee from serving on any other regular House committee.

Cafe Society Gets Rough

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Wealthy sportsman Joel Thorne, 33, wound up in a hospital yesterday after a fracas in a Sunset Strip night club.

As it frequently happens, the Hollywood sheriff's sub-station which investigated said there were no arrests no complaints

But Officer Fred Keithley said Thorne's date Miss Katherine Lockett got into a powder room argument The cafe manager and a parking lot attendant in trying to calm her became involved with Thorne and Thorne was knocked down

Rentals, Education On Tap

Congress Maps Top Legislation

WASHINGTON — (AP)— Leaders put action on school aid and rent controls at the top of their list yesterday for a post-inaugural legislative drive in Congress.

Senator Lucas of Illinois, who becomes majority leader next Thursday, told a reporter that a working schedule for the lawmaking program probably will be drawn up Monday at the weekly White House conference with President Truman.

Senator Hill (D.-Ala.) predicted the Senate Labor committee will approve next Tuesday a Senate bill under which the government would distribute about $270,000,000 to the states to raise educational standards.

Hill said the committee had agreed that no new hearings are needed. Thus it may be the first major bill to clear committee action and reach the Senate calendar.

Chairman Maybank (D.-S. C.) said the full banking committee has marked rent controls for first action, but will begin work quickly on a new housing bill carrying low-cost dwelling and slum clearance provisions.

WAGE BOOST SEEN

The possibility of a Democratic-Republican agreement on terms of a new minimum wage bill heightened the likelihood of action on such a measure.

Taft said he is willing to support a move to raise the present 40 cents an hour minimum to 75. He added, however, that some changes may have to be made in the lists of those exempted. Hill said he thinks the Labor committee may be able to work these out.

While the sailing thus looked smooth for portions of the program President Truman laid before Congress, there were storm warnings for others.

Senator Robertson (D.-Va.) voiced opposition in a speech before the Virginia Medical society in Richmond to setting up a system of universal medical service.

Mae West's Temperature 'Always High'

BALTIMORE —(AP)— Mae West was rushed to University hospital yesterday because of a stomach ailment.

Six and one-half hours later she signed a release, wanting to leave the hospital and go on with a scheduled stage show.

Dr W. H. Townshend, seeking to keep her in the hospital, told her she was running a temperature.

'You know me," the buxom Miss West quipped. "I'm always running a temperature"

Blast. Fire Kill 4

YORK, Pa —(AP)— A 20-year-old woman and her three small children died yesterday in an explosion and fire that destroyed a double frame tenant house on a farm near this eastern Pennsylvania city The victims were Mrs. Margaret Lake Winters, Jane, three, Brenda, two, and John, one. There was no explanation of what caused the blast.

Ideal Spot Chosen for Auto Crash

MEMPHIS, Tenn. —(AP)— A speeding car smashed into a parked taxicab late yesterday.

The vehicles hurtled 80 feet and came to rest beside a hospital door.

Two men got out of the wreckage and walked in for treatment.

Local Bank Deposits at Record High

Reports Show $5,000,000 Hike

Mansfield's banks, which have just completed their annual meetings, reflect prosperity in the city.

Bank deposits in Mansfield were at a record $69,195,905 at the beginning of the year, the annual reports show. That represents an increase of $5,144,000 over last year.

Not only did deposits increase, but the total resources of the four banks went up. The annual bank reports, covering the period Dec. 31, 1947 to Dec. 31, 1948 showed that total resources at the beginning of this year totaled $73,994,749, a five and a half million dollar increase over the $68,423,813 reported last year.

Bank clearings in 1948 also broke the all-time record. Approximately $249,869,000 were cleared last year, a jump of $41,628,509.

Money withdrawn from Mansfield banks from checking accounts for all purposes, but mainly to meet payrolls and purchase raw materials, reached a new peak of $47,096,000 in December, approximately 13 per cent above the same month last year.

The figure for the three month period ending in December was $136,503,000, 14.2 per cent over a comparable period last year.

An official of one bank said deposits had increased 10 per cent during the past year, capital had increased 10 per cent, and there had been a 20 per cent gain in activity.

The same official said that local loans during December 1948 had shown a gain of 40 per cent over the corresponding month of the previous year.

He pointed out there had been a shift of assets from U. S. government bonds to local loans, a condition considered desirable by the management of the bank.

Several banks announced that they had added substantial amounts to their surplus accounts from earnings.

Bevin Faces Hot Battle

LONDON — (AP) — Criticism of Foreign Secretary Bevin's Palestine policy mounted among Laborites, Liberals and Conservatives here yesterday.

Questions listed for next Wednesday's session of the House of Commons indicated the foreign secretary will be in for a hot time

W. T. Scott-Elliott, a Labor member, said he intends to ask Bevin if he knows how many aircraft have been supplied to Israeli by Czechoslovakia in defiance of the U. N. embargo on arms shipments.

Sir Andrew MacFadyean, president-elect of the Liberal party, told a Palestine protest meeting in London last night "the evidence suggests that at times Bevin has been activated, if not by hatred, at any rate by intense dislike" of the Jews.

Soulen Named To High Post

Harry B Soulen, president of Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, has been named a vice-president of Copolymer corporation, producers of "cold rubber," corporation officials have announced at Baton Rouge, La.

A L Freedlander, president of the Dayton Rubber Manufacturing company, was elected president

"Cold rubber" is so called because of the refrigeration process used in its manufacture, as compared to the heat process used in processing ordinary rubber.

Bodies Litter Streets

Death Toll Undetermined

DURBAN, South Africa — Bloody race rioting died down in Durban late last night after bayonet-armed police and military reinforcements launched attacks, the Associated Press reported.

Bodies littered the streets but scattered fighting, mass flight by Indians, and general disruption of the city made an accurate check on the number of dead an impossibility. Earlier estimates ranged from a low of 100 dead and 1,000 injured to a high of 500 dead and 1,000 injured.

Long trails of bloodstains marked every street leading to the non - European hospital where 15 doctors worked to exhaustion caring for the wounded.

A group of Indians, attacked by a Zulu mob chanting savage battle cries, leaped from a 500 foot cliff. Entire families, both Indian and Zulu, were burned alive in their houses. Others were dragged into the streets and slain, or run down as they fled from mobs or resisted.

$1,000,000 DAMAGE

Cause of it all was a fight Thursday in which an Indian peddler injured a Zulu boy. Incident followed incident, swelling into the worst race rioting the country has seen and causing damage which the police said would total $1,000,000 in Durban.

Whole streets were reduced to ruins by mobs swarming through them, killing and pillaging. Entire sections were set aflame by torch bearers and the people burned, or killed when they tried to escape or resist.

As usual in riots, many casualties were caused by heavy stones, clubs and knives.

One Indian family, trapped in a flaming building, shot it out with the mob, killing five attackers before dying in the flames.

The government called all trained members of the Royal Durban Light Infantry brigade to duty, and said the Natal Mounted Rifles would join them today. Governor General G. Brand Van Zyl prepared an order calling the active citizens defense force into action.

Fifteen Dakotas of the air force were carrying nearly 400 armed police and 160 troops of the regular army to Durban from Johannesburg in a day and night shuttle to aid police, military and naval units in stamping out the fighting.

Two territorial battalions were mobilized here.

Six spitfires stood at Johannesburg in case the disorders spread to the European areas of Durban.

Loudonville 'Scare' Over

Loudonville's Mayor J. F. Church told The News-Journal last night that the epidemic of gastro-intestinal infections that afflicted more than 1,000 persons is under control.

Earlier reports that mass inoculations to prevent an outbreak of typhoid fever were being planned, were denied by Church.

"There's nothing to it," he said.

"Everything is under control. That idea of mass inoculations must have come from Columbus. It's all over now as far as we're concerned."

Earlier the Ashland county health commissioner, Dr. C. B. Meuser, said he was considering mass inoculation of the entire village to prevent any outbreaks of typhoid among its 2,500 residents

Prices of Butter, Meat, Soap Beginning to Sag

City Housewife Finds Dollar Buys More Now

By EILEEN DEWHURST

Mansfield housewives are finding their food dollars will buy a little more in 1949 than they did a year ago.

The food item which has taken the biggest price drop in the past year is butter, now selling for 70 to 73 cents a pound in Mansfield markets. In January, 1948, butter was selling in retail stores for 85 to 89 cents a pound

Milk is again selling for 20 cents a quart in Mansfield, the same price advertised in January, 1948. However, in August Mansfielders were paying a record 22 cents a quart for milk.

In the meat line, prices of sliced bacon took a substantial drop during the past year The popular broiler fast meat is now selling for 55 to 65 cents a pound, compared with 79 cents a pound in January, 1948.

Sirloin steak is down from 73 to 75 cents a pound to 69 cents a pound, pork chops from 55 to 65 cents a pound to 49 cents a pound, and pork roast from 57 to 69 cents a pound to 37 to 67 cents a pound.

However, prices of ground beef, now selling at 49 to 53 cents a pound, are higher than those of January, 1948, when it was 43 to 45 cents a pound

The average Mansfield family can afford to eat more eggs today at 57 to 65 cents a dozen than it could a year ago when they were 69 to 75 cents a dozen.

With the decrease in butter prices, butter substitutes and vegetable shortening also have decreased in price. Oleomargarine which sold for 39 to 43 cents a pound in January, 1948, now brings only 25 to 33 cents a pound. Vegetable shortening is now selling for 36 cents a pound, compared with 47 to 49 cents a pound a year ago

Also down in price are laundry and bar soaps.

Soap flakes now cost 29 to 31 cents a box, compared with 38 to 40 cents a box in January 1948 Soap which sold for 12 to 20 cents a cake a year ago now is selling for eight to 16 cents a cake.

Construction Expenditure Record Set

North, East Ohio Dollar Volume High

CLEVELAND — The dollar volume of building and heavy engineering contracts awarded in northern and eastern Ohio last year set a new record, it was reported yesterday by Carl S. Bennett, regional vice president of F. W. Dodge Corporation, a fact-finding organization for the construction industry.

Investment commitments for all classes of building and engineering works in the area in 1948 totaled $466,597,000 to surpass by 8 per cent the previous record of $431,438,000 set in 1946 and to top by 22 per cent last year's volume of $383,978,000.

Nonresidential awards as a group increased 56 per cent over the previous year to a total of $215,368,000, residential awards were up 4 per cent to a total of $164,216,000, and public works and utilities declined 1 per cent to a total of $87,013,000.

The largest increases, Bennett said, were among nonresidential building classifications subjected to federal controls from 1941 to midyear 1947 as "nonessential". Commercial building, such as office buildings and stores, showed a 22 per cent gain over 1947. Religious building awards were up 116 per cent, social and recreational building contracts increased 85 per cent, educational and science building awards gained 153 per cent, while hospital and institutional building contract volume soared 252 per cent.

While single-family house construction was displaying sharp advances both in homes built to owners' orders and homes built by operative builders for sale or rent, apartment house contract volume declined 89 per cent from 1947 to a total of only $2,112,000 last year.

A 22 per cent gain in public works construction to a total of $67,740,000 was reported for last year, while public utilities contracts amounted to $19,273,000 to show a 41 per cent decline from the previous year.

An analysis of contracts by the Dodge Statistical Research service indicated that 28 per cent by dollar volume of last year's awards in the district was for projects classified as publicly owned, including $53,379,000 in nonresidential building, $2,866,000 in residential building and $75,524,000 for public works and utilities.

Watch Roof Nail Length

Roofing nails which penetrate all the way through the boards of the roof deck can be a distinct moisture hazard even though water does not enter through the nail holes.

Points of the nails projecting into the attic usually will be the same temperature as the nail heads outside. Sometimes during the winter, the temperature of the nail points will be lower than the temperature of the attic.

The nail points can collect frost on cold nights. The warmth of the following day will change the frost to water which can seep into the ceilings and walls of the house, cracking plaster and staining wallpaper and paint.

A remedy for this condition is to ventilate the attic so that outside and inside temperatures will be more nearly the same.

Proper length nails are considered essential to correct application of fire-resistant asphalt roofing, and correct application is necessary if the roofing material is to give the full service of which it is capable.

Nails should be long enough to penetrate at least three-fourths inch into the deck lumber. Asphalt shingles frequently are used for reroofing material and in this case, of course, nails must be longer than those used in building a completely new roof.

NO LEISURE MOMENTS—There's no time wasted when Miller's on his six-day-a-week job in his shop. There's always something to be done over in the corner. Here, Miller applies the top coat of paint to a railing which will be added to the iron work at a Mansfield business place.

Basement Hobby Becomes Full-Time Business

Creations In Iron Win Favor

By MARGUERITE MILLER

A hobby that started in a basement, gained speed around a pinochle table and finally took hold in the empty side of a double garage is the background of Jim Miller's thriving business—otherwise known as the Miller Ornamental Iron Works, 110 Glessner avenue.

There's no sign on the shop at the rear of his residence to proclaim the business. There's not even a small sign out front. But enough people are finding the place to keep Miller busy six days of the week—and seven, if he'd allow himself to work his old schedule.

Miller's proud of his creations in iron which are to be found in many buildings in Mansfield. Probably most prominent among the lot are the Zediker apartments which boast all iron work, inside and out, from the Glessner avenue shop.

The business started, Miller recalls, "many years ago as a hobby."

"I was a foreman at the Hughes-Keenan plant when they used to make ornamental iron. In my spare time, I'd turn out a few fancy pieces at home by heating the iron in the furnace and bending them by hand.

"Ivon Bauer, a Mansfield contractor, and his wife, would come over to play pinochle. One night we were sitting around the table and Bauer showed me some house plans that called for iron work!

"He asked me if I knew how much the iron work cost when you had to order from out-of-town.

"I said I didn't. He told me and it was plenty.

"Then he said that he'd like to have me do some work for him. Well, I told him I'd help him out if I had a place to work.

USED HALF OF GARAGE

"Bauer fixed me up with a place in the empty side of his double garage and I went to work there with a drill press and a welding machine.

"After that nobody could figure out where Bauer was getting all his iron work—until Rex Zediker dropped in one day and saw the shop. That's how I came to do the apartments for him."

After that Miller was besieged with numerous builders who kept him on a seven-day week and made it impossible for him to continue in the small quarters.

Now, in his own shop which provides not only working room, but also storage for his materials and finished pieces, he's kept as busy with private jobs as he was with the contracted ones before.

There's only a rare chance that any grilling or railing you might buy from Miller has been used before in the same pattern. He buys all his castings from either Cleveland or New York, then cuts them down or pieces them together for a "pattern fit" on every job.

"I don't like to make the same design twice," he said with a grin. "And most times, even the people who think they'd like their iron work just like their neighbor's, like it better when I suggest something 'just a little different'."

PATTERNS VARY

Miller's "different" patterns range from lacy and intricate clusters of grapes, entwined with leaves and vines to the bolder and clean-lined scrolls and shield designs. One of his favorite new patterns is a motif of overlapping oak leaves intermingled with acorns.

Using the cast ornamental motifs as the basis for his design, he goes to work on putting the porch columns or railings together with strip iron. Variations are made by using half-inch iron bars either straight or twisted.

On inside stair rails, the straight and twisted iron bars are sometimes alternated to achieve a pleasing and decorative effect.

Once the whole pattern has been welded together and the rails attached, the "job" is ready for its ground coat of aluminum paint over which goes the black iron paint—or white—if the latter is preferred.

Most inside iron work, Miller said, is kept to the original iron color and given a light coat of lacquer.

Research Solves Shade Duplication Problem

Uncertainty Taken Out of Paint Mixing

CHICAGO—(AP)—The color blind now can mix paints and come up with the right shade, says Louis Cheskin, technical director of the Color Research Institute of America.

The secret is a new mixing formula.

Cheskin says research inspired by the atom bomb uncovered the three true primary colors. As a result, he claims, 1,296 colors can be mixed for practical purposes.

He said the findings could be applied commercially in many ways and predicted they would have a revolutionary effect in the paint, ink and dye fields.

"For example," he said, "let's say a lady wants to paint a chair apple green. She goes to a paint store where the clerk looks through a stock of maybe 480 different kinds of paint. He finds one that is apple green. But the lady thinks its just a shade too dark. So the clerk suggests adding some white paint. Well, after some testing and mixing, the lady gets a can of paint of the shade she wants.

"Two months later the lady goes back to the store to get some more of the same shade. This time the clerk cant remember exactly what green he used or how much white he added. Its a sad story.

PROBLEM SOLVED

Then Cheskin told what would happen to the lady when the new color system is introduced.

"This time she finds the store has only three colors—green-blue, magenta-red and yellow, plus black and white, he said. "The clerk hands her a color chart and tells her to select the one she wants. Then he looks on the back of the chart and finds the formula for mixing.

"Its no complicated formula—its like a recipe for making a cake. The formula, or recipe, tells the clerk the exact mixture to get the exact color the lady picked.

Cheskin, 40, author of two books on color, said there always have been disagreements and uncertainties about the primary colors.

"Practically, he said, "we now have the true primary colors, scientifically determined and scientifically valid.

He said he had changed the direction of his research after reading the mythe atom bomb report and noting the Einstein theory of the relationship between energy and matter.

"Einstein said—in simple words—that energy and matter are the same thing in different forms and that matter can be converted into energy and energy into matter, Cheskin said. "This is basically what happened in the atom bomb.

"First let me explain that it was already scientifically determined that the primary colors for light are orange-red, green and violet-blue. What we wanted to do was to find the true primary colors for matter or pigment.

"I reasoned that light is just one aspect of energy and pigment is one aspect of matter. Eventually, I concluded that color is the manifestation of the relationship between light (or energy) and pigment (or matter).

"In other words, he said, "you have one set of primaries for light and another for matter. In the laboratory it was found that two units of light—using an orange-red filter and a green filter under a lamp, for example—produced the primary color for pigment, yellow in this case.

FOUND PRIMARY COLORS

"Other combinations of filters giving the three light primaries produced the other two pigment primary colors, green-blue and magenta-red. Now we had the three true primary colors of pigment — green-blue, magenta-red and yellow.

"I said that two units of light produced one unit of matter. Well the reverse is also true. This means that by mixing yellow and magenta-red (or two units of matter) we produced orange-red, which is one unit of primary light color.

"With these three primary colors of pigment established—green-blue, magenta-red and yellow—plus black and white, we have produced 1,296 colors that can be produced time and again in any quantity, any place.

"In connection with the commercial development of this, a large paint manufacturer making up color charts had the colors mixed by an office boy who was color blind. He didnt know what some of the colors were, but by reading the formula (which is expressed in mixtures of bulk or weight units) he was able to mix the exact colors.

AKRON—(AP)— Production was at a standstill at one rubber company and partly halted at another yesterday as the result of strikes.

A walkout of tire builders stopped operations at the Mohawk Rubber company, idling 500 CIO United Rubber Workers. Ray Bloch, company president, said the dispute began Monday over a piecework rate system.

The other disagreement virtually closed the No. 1 plant of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company approximately 3,500 employes were idle after 100 mill room workers walked out yesterday in protest against the dismissal of one man.

Senior Church Clubs End First Half of Competition

First round of play in the Senior Church league will be completed this week on the YMCA court with First Methodist needing only a win over Ontario Community to sew up the title.

The Methodists have beaten every other team in the loop, being undefeated in six games. They meet Ontario in the 8 p. m. game on Tuesday's card. Opening the three game program at 7 will be Lucas Lutheran and Park Avenue Baptist, the only team with a chance of tieing the Methodists. United Brethren and First Christian are scheduled at 9 p. m.. St. Matthews completed its first round card last week.

Winners of the first and second halves will meet at the end of the season for the championship trophy. Second round play will start next week.

Bob Meeker remains on top of the individual scoring column with a four point advantage over his St. Matthew's teammate, Trent Snavely. Meeker has 81 points, Snavely 77.

Lex Thompson Gives Up; Sells 'Losing' Champions

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— A syndicate of 100 Philadelphia business men bought the Philadelphia Eagles for $250,000 today to "bring local pro football back to the community."

The national football league champions have been owned for eight years by Alexis Thompson, New York millionaire. Thompson said he sold the Philadelphia franchise because he found it a losing proposition even with a title winning team.

GET NO SALARY

The new owners, headed by James P. Clark, former Democratic city chairman, said, "civic pride and interest in the community have been the factors chiefly motivating the purchase.

"None of the club's new officers will receive any salary," said Clark, adding, "we want this great Philadelphia sports enterprise to maintain its success and acquire the character of a true city project."

NFL Commissioner Bert Bell was on hand to witness the turning over of the Eagles and announced that loop owners gave unanimous approval to the deal in a telephone poll.

Bell said Clark would represent Philadelphia at the annual league meeting in Chicago next week.

Clark will vote the Philadelphia interest at the meeting in which a peaceful settlement between the NFL and All-America conference appears in the making.

Tygers, Rams Enter 'Meat' of Schedules

Mansfield's two high school basketball teams play four games this week, but only one is listed on a home hardwood.

Senior high travels to Bellevue Tuesday night and battles Akron North Saturday night in the Tyger lair. Madison takes to the road for both of its contests. The Rams battle the undefeated Fredericktown team Tuesday and go to Kenton Friday.

Each of the four contests shapes up as a thriller, although Madison will go into both of its games as a slight underdog. Senior high will be rated as no better than an even choice against its two foes.

Bellevue, although playing in slightly slower competition than the Tygers is always "up" for the Mansfield games and gives the locals a tough battle. Bengal skipper Vern Hoffman was head football and basketball coach at Bellevue for many years, accounting for much of the rivalry.

SPLIT WITH ASHLAND

Bellevue has won three games and lost one in the Northern Ohio league, and has split even in two close games with Ashland.

Akron North, which defeated Akron East, 49-40, in its latest outing Friday night, will be making its first appearance here since 1946. At the time the Vikings appeared in a four team cage carnival with Senior high, Bexley and Toledo Libbey.

Madison, after winning as it pleased over the past three opponents is entering the toughest section of its schedule. Following this week's two games at Fredericktown and Kenton the schedule reads: Crestline, Columbus Linden McKinley, Shelby, and Crestline.

Fredericktown, one of the best Class B teams in this area in many years, has won 14 straight games and has not been choicy as to its opponents.

Latest victory was a 50-44 conquest of Edison and earlier last week the Freddies played even in an exhibition with Senior high. Another of its victims was Lexington by a 52-32. Madison beat Lexington by only 41-38.

The Friday night opponent, Kenton, is a newcomer to the Ram schedule, but is a large Class A school and added Madison to its schedule only after the regular season started.

Dudley to Be Featured

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Bruce Dudley of Louisville, Ky., new president of the American association, will be the featured "instructor" at Monday's opening session of a minor league school for baseball executives here.

Coaches Group Plans Campaign

By FRITZ HOWELL
(AP Sports Writer)

COLUMBUS — Ohio has about 1400 high school basketball coaches. And how many of them would you estimate belong to the Ohio High School Basketball Coaches association?

The answer—387.

Ralph Webster, Columbus East high's militant secretary-treasurer of the association is more than somewhat perturbed by the relatively small membership. In fact, he's launching a campaign to get at least a majority of the mentors into the group.

★

"Our dues are a dollar a year," Webster said, "and for that buck a coach gets the right to gripe for a whole season if he doesn't like the way things are handled by the State High School Athletic association.

"Basketball coaches—all of us—like to gripe about this and that, and you'd think the privilege would be worth a dollar.

"Frankly, the state board has been mighty nice to us. I sit in on all the board meetings, as a representative of the coaches' association. The board members ask me for our ideas and reactions. They try to go along with us as much as possible.

"But the fact remains I'm representing only 387 of our 1400 coaches, so the board and I don't know whether the ideas I offer are the consensus of the entire group or not."

Webster said the association membership jumped only 25 this year, its second season of existence. The southwestern district is practically "solid" in memberships, but they are scattered in the other areas.

The association secretary said that through ideas advanced by his minority group the state board had agreed to allow 12 players to participate in tournament games, instead of 10 as in the past; had approved a rectangular backboard for all tournament games, and had decided the state finals would be played on the same floor used at the fairgrounds coliseum by Ohio State, instead of having 10 feet cut off each end.

Another angle being studied by the state board is a method of financing the athletic association without digging into basketball receipts to such a great extent. For the last two years the association has taken more than $100,000 from the cage tournaments.

Webster said the plan under consideration would extract a minute fee from all high school athletic contests throughout the year, thus allowing a better rake-off for the basketball teams which fight their way into the state tournament."

Under present arrangements, tournament teams get their expenses and a relatively small bonus.

"We could get a lot of things done if the coaches would just get into our association and prove to the board that our ideas represent a majority of the mentors," Webster said. "I wish you'd tell 'em to send me their buck so they can get in the game with the rest of us."

So, you non-member coaches, consider yourselves told!

Hollywood Cinderellas: A Story In Headlines

Film Success Withers Romance

HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—This is a Hollywood story about a couple of kids who met in a dramatic academy in New York.

It all could be told in headlines, except nobody was writing headlines about broke but ambitious young actors grubbing for bucks in Greenwich Village a dozen years ago. They didn't even write a headline the day Phylis Isley got her big break.

You know Phylis better as Jennifer Jones. But then she was just a youngster from Tulsa, Okla., married to an unknown actor from Salt Lake City named Robert Walker, with two babies, Bobby and Michael. There were no headlines that day, but here's how she told it later:

JENNIFER JONES

"I heard David O. Selznick was looking for a girl to play in the movie 'Claudia.' I parked the kids and went down to his New York office. They let me read the part and I was very-very bad.

"I thought they were just trying to comfort me when they told me to come back tomorrow and see Mr. Selznick. I was busy with the children next day when the phone rang and Selznick's office wanted to know where I was.

"I ran almost all the way. Mr. Selznick was sweet as he could be to me. The next day he gave me a screen test. Then he signed me . . ."

It was then the headlines started, for Robert Walker went to Hollywood, too. He likewise became a star.

Luckiest Kids In Hollywood

Happenings In Hollywood

Three Have Hot Idea for Cold Picture

By HOWARD C. HEYN

HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—Here's the hard way to become a film star:

Actor Mikel Conrad, Director Ewing Scott and Cameraman Kay Norton went to Alaska last February to make an arctic picture, purely on speculation. They called their venture "Three Men on a Hunch."

It has now paid off, but a lot happened in the meanwhile. Universal-International recently bought their footage and engaged Scott and Conrad to make additional scenes at the studios here. The film will be called "Arctic Manhunt."

Universal won't disclose the purchase price. The trio, knowing a cue when they hear one, are mum also. But reports around Hollywood are that they split about $100,000, including fees for studio interiors.

And Conrad got a contract. He'll star in the forthcoming "Sierra."

It wasn't easy. Conrad, Scott and Norton had a script and a grubstake. They felt they had a boxoffice idea, too. No arctic melodrama had been filmed since the war, but they knew such pictures usually were successful.

At Point Hope, near the Arctic Circle, they encountered endless hardships working in temperatures 40 to 60 degress below zero. Camera gears froze. Equipment had to be disassembled every night, the parts washed in kerosene and coated in grease made from whale oil and kerosene.

Zero weather caused static flashes in the camera, light-streaking some of the film. A hot water bottle frequently was pressed against the side of the camera to thaw it.

Norton shot 26,000 feet of film. Most scenes were made at Tigara, a village near Point Hope. Others were shot at Point Barrow. Conrad froze the tips of his ears, Norton the middle finger of his right hand. Scott slipped on the ice and incurred cuts on the nose and over one eye.

Their last scene and their last funds were finished together. They sold their extra clothes and wrist watches to get airplane fare to Hollywood.

Scott and Conrad have had enough of the arctic for a while. But by the time U-I bought their film cameraman Norton was headed north again, on a special arctic job for the army.

Will Form '49 Program

Mayor Roy W. Vaughn announced yesterday that a special meeting of the executive committee of Association of Ohio Municipalities will be held Monday in Columbus to discuss the legislative program the association will sponsor this year.

The committee will meet with Gov. Frank J. Lausche at 11 a. m. and with senate and house leaders at 1:30 p. m.

Mayor Vaughn is a member of the executive committee, chairman of the legislative committee and second vice-president of the association. He was notified of the meeting in a telegram last night from P. J. Flaherty, acting president of the Association of Ohio Municipalities.

The legislative program was drafted at a meeting of the association in Columbus three weeks ago.

SAYS FARMERS NEED HELP

SHREWSBURY, ENGLAND — (AP) — J. K. Knowles, general secretary of the National Farmers Union, said in a speech here British farmers can reach in 1952 their target of 150 percent of their prewar output if they get enough help from the government. He said they need new capital investment, more labor and a bigger allocation of animal foodstuffs.

Guest Artist Arrives Today

Mastersingers to Offer Favorites In 2 Concerts

Frank Guerrara, Metropolitan opera baritone, will arrive in Mansfield at 11:50 a. m. today for a final rehearsal with Mastersingers and Mrs. Margaret Hall, accompanist, in preparation for their annual midwinter concerts Monday and Tuesday evenings.

The final rehearsal will be held this afternoon at the John Simpson auditorium, where the concerts will be held tomorrow and Tuesday.

The program for the two concerts will start with the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," in the Fred Waring arrangement which heretofore the Mastersingers have used for their production number and which has proved one of the most popular in their repertoire.

Three other numbers by the chorus, "Welsh Choral," by Reese; "By the Holy Hills," by Bach, and "Glorious Forever," by Rachmaninoff, with the "Battle Hymn, will comprise the first part of the program.

Guerrara will continue it with "Tu lo sai," by Torelli; "Chi Vuol Innamorarsi," by Scarlatti, and "Eri Tu," from Verdi's "The Masked Ball."

Four numbers from popular musical shows wil. comprise the second series by the Mastersingers. They will include: "It's a Grand Night for Singing," from "State Fair"; "If I Loved You" and "June Is Bustin' Out All Over," both from "Carousel," and "Oklahoma," from the musical comedy of the same name, all Richard Rodgers productions.

Four numbers in English by Guerrara will include the familiar "None But the Lonely Heart," by Tschaikowsky; "Invictus," by Bruno Huhn; "When I Have Sung My Songs" and "My Lady Walks In Loveliness," both by Ernest Charles."

The production number, always given by the guest artist and the chorus, will be "You'll Never Walk Alone," by Rodgers, also from the musical comedy "Carousel."

Following the Tuesday night concert there will be a party for Mastersingers, their wives and guests at the Sky club. Charles Milton Newcomb, humorist and lecturer, will be the speaker.

Operation Vittles Starts Far From Germany

Berlin Airlift Has Roots In U. S. Farms

FRANKFURT, GERMANY. — (AP) — Operation Vittles on the Berlin airlift starts in a Kansas wheat field.

Five thousand miles from Berlin, the farms and mills and ranches of America set in motion the flow of food to the blockaded city.

Wheat and flour come from the middle west. Meat from Texas. Milk from Wisconsin. Eggs from New England.

From America's bounty flows the bulk of the food for western Berlin's 2,225,000 people. Every section of the U. S. contributes.

Denmark, Holland, Britain and western Germany supply some. And a little will come soon from Hungary, behind the iron curtain.

A complex operation must unfold before a single sack of flour is hoisted into an airlift plane.

The right kind of food in the right amounts must be at seven different airfields in western Germany at the proper time.

It must be packaged to withstand rough flight conditions. It must be pre-cooked or concentrated to save vital cargo space. It must "keep" while stockpiled in western Germany or Berlin.

And all this is being done. Not one airlift plane has been grounded due to lack of cargo, say American officials here.

The boss of this behind-the-airlift operation is Major Gen. Charles P. Gross. As chairman of BEALCOM — the Berlin airlift coordinating committee — Gen. Gross coordinates the flow of supplies to Berlin.

It requires delicate timing and close coordination with the American and British air forces, U. S. and British army transportation officers and German railway and food officials.

Airport storage space is small. So the stockpile of foods must be held to a minimum at the airfields. But supplies cannot be allowed to pile up beyond the maximum capacity of warehouses. An average of three days supply is held on railway freight cars. These are rolled up to the loading aprons of the airfields to discharge their cargo.

During the winter a two weeks' supply of food will be stored at a Frankfurt warehouse in the U. S. zone and another in the British zone near Wunstorf airfield.

Food is the biggest single item on the airlift. For its supreme goal is to provide Berliners with their daily food ration.

Military cargo represents about one-eighth of the total tonnage. U. S. army cargoes, for example, amount to about 500 tons daily to Berlin. The German civil economy requirements run to about 3,600 tons a day.

The American and British food rationing and distribution staff, which runs the food side of the lift, is headed by Paul E. Quintus of Gardner, Iowa. Quintus is a former U. S. department of agriculture marketing specialist.

This group works out the various tonnages of food required each month to maintain a balanced diet in Berlin. This is a complex mathematical operation. For all of western Berlin's 2,225,000 people do not have the same ration.

The population is divided and subdivided into dozens of different categories based on age, profession, labor performed, and state of health.

With cargo space at a premium, Quints' staff decided to use dehydrated foods to cut volume. These are first cooked and then dehydrated, so they can be prepared for eating with little cooking. And this saves fuel in fuel-short Berlin.

FLOUR TOPS LIST

The biggest food item on the lift is flour. Most of it is imported. Rye flour will be added shortly, American officials say, for some U. S. wheat is being traded to Denmark and Hungary for rye.

If fresh potatoes were shipped they would weigh more than western Berlin's total food requirements. Dehydrated potatoes weigh only one-fifth of fresh potatoes. About half of the lift's potato load is German grown, the remainder imported.

Other food items going to Berlin include:

Dried milk—skimmed and whole—is imported from the U. S. fresh milk takes too much space. Dried vegetables, mainly German grown with some from Holland. Tea and coffee. Dried yeast. Cereals, including breakfast food, macaroni and spaghetti, all from imported grains processed in Germany.

Dehydrated beans and peas. Fats are mainly imported. A certain amount of butter from the German economy is added for hospitals. The meat ration is met with American dried eggs, German and imported fish and canned meat, mostly from the U. S.

The first fish shipment to Berlin had 20 per cent wastage in each box. This was cut to six per cent by lopping off the heads and tails before shipment. Sugar comes from German production. Cheese was added to the ration Nov. 1. It's mainly German with some Swiss and Danish imports.

Anglo-American officials are trying to spice Berlin's diet by adding honey and dehydrated fruit.

The internal trade section directs the flow of industrail goods on the airlift. It has concentrated consumer and industrial supplies scheduled for Berlin manufacturers in five German warehouses in the Frankfurt-Wiesbaden area.

From them the trade section keeps orders filled on time in Berlin. German manufacturers in the bizonal area pay the same freight rates on the airlift as they would by rail.

Manufactured goods also are shuttled from Berlin to the bizonal area. Since the airlift began about 5,000 gross metric tons of German industrial products have been sent to the west through Templehof and Gatow airfields in Berlin.

These goods are mainly motors, generators, telephone and mining equipment. Quick delivery of these helps bizonia's economic recovery. And many manufacturers in western Berlin are thus able to keep their factories open, giving employment to thousands.

Cowboy Star Gives Up

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Gene Autry wears a moustache in almost half the scenes of "Rim of the Canyon" (portraying his own father), and he says he's a bit dubious about his fans' reaction.

They'll let him know — quick. When his admirers heard that he would kiss his leading lady, Elena Verdugo, in "The Big Sombrero," they wrote so many protesting letters to the studio that the kiss scene was cut out. Gene's still kissless on the screen, and he may stay clean shaven, too.

6 Richland Men Called By Army

Scheduled for Induction Jan. 26

Six Richland countians will be sent to the Mansfield army induction center Jan 26, and they are expected to be the last to be drafted from here for at least two months.

Scheduled for induction are Robert Eugene Ziegler, 23, of 136 Columbia avenue; James Willie Dilworth, 23, of 154 North Adams street; Claude Robert Sheffield, 23, of 298 East Second street; Edward Gail Kirk, 24, of Ashland; Herbert Eugene Hewitt, 23, of Shelby, and Roger Lee White, 23, of Shelby.

Directives have been received from State Selective service headquarters in Columbus cancelling draft calls during February and March, the Selective Service office reported Reason for the letup of inductions is that the army has reached its full authorized strength, due largely to a recent flood of voluntary enlistment

Calls for pre-induction physical examinations have also been cancelled, the Selective Service office said.

In line with the sharp cutbacks in enlisting army personnel the Mansfield army recruiting office said it had been ordered not to accept men for enlistments of less than three years.

Prior to the new order the army had been accepting voluntary enlistments for 21 months and for two years

The selective service office does not expect to suspend its operations during the period of the cutback, draft officials said Neither will any of its personnel be relinquished There are still more than 4,000 questionnaires from men in Richland county to be processed, it was pointed out.

Newsbabe Riles Russians

BERLIN—The prettiest heckler of the Russians in Berlin is on the "wanted" list of their political police.

Twice a week, storm or shine, she makes jokes at Russian expense. Most of Berlin chuckles.

As long as she stays on the Allied side of the boundary dividing this city blonde Christina Ohlsen hopes she'll be safe But regardless of dangers the future may bring, she is now the most popular entertainer on RIAS an American-sponsored radio station here It's managed by William F Heimlich, of Columbus, Ohio

CHRISTINA OHLSEN
On Soviet Wanted List.

SHE'S A 'NEWSBABE'

Christian calls herself in Berlin slang, a newsbabe Pretending to be hawking newspapers on a downtown street she cries out the headlines with pin-pricking comment

It's a rare week that word or action by German communists and their Russian bosses doesn't make her script-writing easy

The newsbabe fad has grown so much that little dolls in Christina's supposed gamin likeness are sold in western sectors of Berlin Each clutches a bundle of papers and wears two blonde pig-tails

RUSSIA WANTS HER

RIAS discovered Christina was on the Soviet wanted list when one of their reporters was arrested recently in East Berlin Russian officers grilled him angrily about the newsbabe

Nix gut we'll catch her yet" the reporter said he was told before the reluctant Soviets released him

Christina says her ambition was to be a ballerina But the Nazis, she says, sent her to work in a factory after the war began Her health broke down After convalescing, she became a minor comedian in films and on the stage

GETS ELECTION LETTERS

Her most prized radio fan letter bears an East Berlin postmark and is in the crude handwriting of a day laborer It arrived just before the anti-communist city election in December

"If we could elect you, little newsbabe, we'd do it" the letter promised "Then all the politicians could sell papers and we'd have peace in the world"

Unlike most German theatrical folk Christina denies any wish to emigrate from her ruined homeland She says

"I want to stay in Germany and have a really beautiful life—getting paid in laughs"

She likes RIAS because her program doesn't hew to a rigid ideological line Her barbs find a variety of targets. For example, she disagreed with the American-licensed Tagesspiegel the other day when it called upon all Berliners to boycott all theaters in the Soviet sector

"Silly!" retorted Christina "You'd break down the bridges which us Berliners need" (AP Newsfeatures)

Phone Stock Takes Drop

NEW YORK —(AP)— Another drop in American Telephone and Telegraph highlighted a sleepy stock market yesterday

A T & T sold at the lowest price since 1943 on a decline of around a point This was in addition to yesterday's one-point loss Selling was touched off by news that the Department of Justice had filed an anti-monopoly suit against the company

Charges elsewhere were narrow and fairly well divided between gains and losses Many stocks were ignored completely

Trading was slow even for a Saturday Turnover for the full session was at the rate of around 250,000 shares, which would be the slowest Saturday in some four months

New Secretary of State Will Guide Own Foreign Policy

Red Menace Seen Early By Acheson

Warned Russia Broke Pledges

WASHINGTON—(AP) — More than three year ago—the ink had just dried on the United Nations charter—the National Council for the American-Soviet Friendship met in New York to hear the handsome assistant secretary of state, Dean Acheson.

He arrived complete with superb vocabulary, dramatic mustache, resonant voice and approved haberdashery. It was quickly obvious he had also arrived with a very serious switch in thinking among the top foreign policy makers.

He felt it was all well and good to sympathize with the constant Russian complaint that she had to have friendly governments on her borders, the plea Moscow was then using to dictate the new Polish government.

But, said Acheson, Americans would expect Russia to seek such security without disturbing the rights of other peoples.

The speech got little attention, but Acheson's co-workers now say that he was one of the first to warn that Russia was not living up to her pledges.

Since 1940 Acheson's stand on public affairs has been in just about that position: a little in advance of official state department policy and of the program the majority of Americans would accept.

Now he has been asked to take the helm, as secretary of state. Washington and the world will be waiting to see whether he can keep that stance—a little in advance of the majority's wishes.

Acheson first came to the department in 1941, when President Roosevelt asked him to break off seven successful years with a Washington law concern and become assistant secretary of state.

It meant a big loss in income, but Acheson agreed.

His attitude on the top problem—the role of Russia in the war and the peace to follow—about paralleled the attitude of most other top government men. He worked for patient consideration of Soviet quirks, as many Americans did, when little was known about the Russians.

GAVE TRIAL WARNING

Then Russian stubborness began to show up. Acheson sent up that trial warning in New York.

A month earlier he had shown he would fight power grabs anywhere. He told a news conference this government would never sign a military alliance with the "present Buenos Aires military regime."

Shortly Argentina went to the polls and put the Peron clique into power by vote. American policy accepted the verdict of the polls.

In the first half of 1946 most Americans wanted only to beat a hasty path to normalcy. Acheson again sounded off on what was then a conservative note.

He told a meeting that rapid demobilization of our troops had been a mistake. He doubted their return home had accomplished as much as the more rapid stabilization which might have come to the world if American troops had stayed abroad a little longer.

He was then acting secretary of state. Secretary James F. Byrnes had to spend months of 1946 abroad.

Just then the Yugoslavs shot down some American planes. Acheson carried the ball on that, conferring frequently by radio with Byrnes. The upshot was the American government demanded and got apology and restitution from Yugoslavia.

In midsummer of 1946 the Soviets demanded new talks about the Dardanelles, the passage from the Black to the Mediterranean sea, and said they would want bases there. This was a threat to Turkey's independence.

Acheson won approval to send Moscow a note which said Washington would oppose Russian bases on the Dardenelles. Moscow dried up, but the argument may still flare.

In early 1947 the British said they could no longer carry the security of Greece. The burden fell on the U.S. Acheson sold the administration on the "Truman doctrine", a major turning point in American foreign policy. It put us on the line to stop the spread of communism.

Much earlier, in November 1944, Acheson had taken the first such step, although it wasn't recognized at the time.

At a Montreal meeting of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration (UNRRA) he insisted on $50,000,000 aid for Italians.

Europeans protested Italy had been an axis partner. Cynics said it was an American bid to buy Italian votes for Roosevelt in the 1944 election.

Now state department men admit that secret reports already showed a strong Italian communist party and that this was a step to stop it.

Acheson's path at conferences was smoothed because Uncle Sam was also Santa Claus. But Acheson at several points has insisted on careful spending.

CUT UNRRA BUDGET

At the first UNRRA conference in 1943 he cut the original budget from $2,500,000 to $2,000,000. He has warned publicly that American aid must be tailored to American ability to give.

On the other hand he has fought a parsimonious policy for the Marshall plan. He was one of the authors, and he told a congressional hearing the sum must be large enough to put Europe back to work, that merely keeping Europe on relief would be foolish.

In 1946 Acheson announced that another change in American aid was on the way. He would approve aid only after special American agreements were written with friendly governments.

That ended UNRRA. It ended aid to the Soviet bloc, and it paved the way for the Marshall plan.

Acheson spoke of "regional arrangements" as possibly the best current bulwark against war, but he left the department for law again in July 1947, before the regional arrangements idea had taken full flower. By then he had become undersecretary to George C. Marshall.

Now the U.S. government is discussing the most serious such agreement in its history: a military pact with five western European powers. Acheson returns to leadership as the final decision must be taken.

On the cold war he agrees with other American leaders: he thinks it is dangerous but will not necessarily lead to war. He thinks the cold war may last for many years.

He takes one step further. He thinks one certain way to change Russian policy may be for us to carry through our plan to strengthen the free governments of western Europe.

He says: "Communism only takes advantage of weak and unstable situations. But the communists meet a stable situation with complete realism. They adjust to it."

CHANGE COMING UP—The state department will get new leadership Jan. 20 when Dean Acheson, a former undersecretary in the department, succeeds Gen. George C. Marshall as secretary. At the same time Undersecretary Robert Lovett will step aside for James E. Webb, now budget director. Both Marshall and Lovett resigned, Marshall because of his health and Lovett for "personal reasons."

Faces Charge Of Forgery

Anderson Trancia Chick, 36, of 280 North Franklin avenue, was arraigned in Cleveland yesterday before United States Commissioner H. A. Horn for forgery of a U. S. Treasury check. He was placed under $1,500 bond.

He was arrested by Mansfield police Friday at the request of the U. S. Secret Service and taken to Cleveland by Agent Fred J. Douglas. Chick will be tried for the forgery before a federal grand jury. If found guilty he will face up to 10 years in a federal prison.

Federal agents have been investigating the forgery since last February. The check was for $39.50 and made out to Andrew Dent, 276 North Franklin avenue. By mistake, however, it was delivered to Chick, who, according to Douglas, forged Dent's name and cashed the check at a Bowman street grocery store.

She said preliminary plans will be made for the annual Achievement Day program to be held in April.

Puts Truant On Probation

A 15-year old Mansfield boy was placed under supervision in his own home and required to attend school regularly at a hearing in juvenile court Friday. The boy was charged with habitual truancy. He had not attended school since the opening of the school year last fall, court authorities said.

The boy told the court his truancy was due to his bad vision. Attempts were being made to transfer him from Johnny Appleseed school to John Simpson junior high school, County Juvenile Officer Ralph W. Carroll said. The reason for the transfer was to enable the pupil to enroll in manual arts classes.

Study Fire Prevention At Meeting

Area Leaders to Hear Coordinating Plan

A meeting to coordinate the fire prevention activities of cities and counties with the Ohio Fire Safety committee will be held Tuesday night at the Chamber of Commerce.

A number of prominent Mansfielders and civic leaders in nearby communities have been invited to attend.

Norman A. Irmle, Columbus, of the state committee, will explain the program for 1949, and discuss the means by which the committee can assist local fire prevention committees in their programs.

The Ohio Fire Safety committee was organized by former Governor Thomas J. Herbert. Its goal is to spur the fire prevention theme on a year-round basis. An extensive promotional program is to be coordinated by the state fire marshal's office, working through district, city, and county chairmen. General fire safety measures are to be integrated with measures of special significance to the locality.

Local fire prevention committees are to be supplied with educational and publicity material from the state committee.

Among the persons who have accepted invitations to attend the meeting are Mayor Roy W. Vaughn, Fire Chief L. J. Steele, W. G. Schultz, chairman of the C. of C. fire prevention committee, Harry W. Dailey, chairman of the Mansfield Safety council, Mrs. E. G. Pankow, president of the Mansfield P-TA council, Rev. Charles W. Stoneburner, president of the Mansfield Ministerial association, Mayor Wayne Stillwell of Millersburg, and Fire Chief Paul Soles of Ashland.

The state is divided into 10 districts each with its own organization for fire prevention. Mansfield is in the Eighth district of the state fire prevention committee.

The goal of the program is expressed in its motto: "A Fire Safe Ohio."

U. S. Budget Figure High

COLUMBUS — Residents of Richland county will contribute approximately $31,756,010 to the cost of federal government operations in the coming year if the Truman budget is enacted by Congress, according to the Ohio Chamber of Commerce.

Estimated cost for the state at large would be $2,442,770,000, or eight and one-half times the total expenditures for general operations of Ohio state government in 1948, it was reported in a statement issued Saturday by Executive Vice-President Herschel C. Atkinson.

The burden would be approximately $312.63 for every man, woman, and child in the state, or $1,250.52 for every Ohio family, Mr. Atkinson said. Every individual pays, not only in direct and indirect taxes, but more important, in the price of all foods and everything used and consumed, Atkinson stated.

The estimates represent the share Ohio taxpayers would have to meet for the $41,858,000,000 federal expenditures proposed by President Truman this week to Congress for the 1949-1950 fiscal year.

Guard Reservoir Following Threat

WAURIKA, Okla. —(AP)— The water reservoir of this southern Oklahoma town of 2,000 was heavily guarded last night as a precaution against threats of poisoning by an ex-convict charged with murder. Officers believe the 53-year-old ex-convict, Roy Frank Godby, is on a trail of vengeance.

He is charged with the murder of Earl Pruet, Oklahoma City attorney, in his law office Tuesday afternoon. The assailant escaped in the excitement. Pruet successfully prosecuted Godby on an armed robbery charge here 17 years ago when he was county attorney.

Police Seek Rapist Who Invaded Berth

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. — (AP)—A Southern Pacific passenger train was held here 4½ hours yesterday while officials investigated a woman passenger's complaint she had been raped in her berth.

She said someone crept into her berth when the train was near Oakridge. That is 152 miles north of here and about 70 miles south of where the famed "Lower 13" murder occurred.

The woman said she was asleep and not aware at first what was happening. She said she was forcibly attacked before she awakened completely. Then she screamed.

Former Spy Likes Farm

WESTMINSTER, MD., — (AP) — If you're looking for Whittaker Chambers, ex-courier for a communist spy network, you won't find him on Pipe Creek farm near here; you'll find Whittaker Chambers, farmer.

"Farming is the life," says the short, fat man whose most famous crop to date has been a batch of "pumpkin papers".

It was on his rambling 317-acre homestead that Chambers one night last month led federal agents to a pumpkin patch. Selecting one of the pumpkins, he removed its base and extracted from its hollowed-out interior five rolls of microfilmed state department documents.

Chambers says he got the documents from state department employes involved in a communist spy ring. This, he says, was during the years 1932-38, when he operated in the "underground" as a messenger for the ring.

His story, pieced together from testimony before the House committee and a federal grand jury, is still unravelling.

When he isn't testifying before a federal grand jury or the house committee, Whittaker Chambers is a farmer. And, however history may record him, that's what he says he wants to be the rest of his days.

North-south traffic was brought to a standstill last night for about 20 minutes when an eastbound Erie railroad freight train temporarily stalled, blocking the Bowman, North Mulberry and North Main street crossings. The train was halted when an air hose broke.

Tree-Eating Goats Involved In County Court Hearing

A court action involving bark-eating goats has been scheduled for Monday in Common Pleas court. It is one of six suits to be heard this week.

In this action, the second case to be heard Monday, Russell Clary, of 130 West Third street, asks $405 damages, claiming goats from an adjoining property trespassed on his Jackson township property, eating the bark off 27 peach trees.

He contends he was damaged in that amount, which he asks from Ernest and Iva Keiser, of Shelby, R. D. who owned the goats.

The first case set for Monday is an action for $133 brought by Charles Roth against Frank J. Dalton. It is a case appealed from the court of G. W. Armstrong, justice of the peace of Sharon township.

Roth claims the sum is due him for labor and materials in doing work on Dalton's farm. Dalton, in a cross-petition, asks $162 from Roth, contending Roth did the work in a careless and negligent manner.

ASKS $35,000

The first case set for Wednesday is a $35,000 action for injuries allegedly received by Elaine Moritz, of 532 Daisy street, in an automobile accident.

Named defendant is H. Eugene Ryan, administrator of estate of Fred Miller jr., deceased. She contends she suffered the injuries while a passenger in a car driven by Miller and which went off the Ashland Hill road and crashed down an embankment, Feb. 21, 1946 Miller died of injuries suffered in the accident.

Her petition says she presented a claim to the administrator, but it was disallowed in May, 1947.

Another case set for Wednesday is a $375 suit for car damages filed by Chalmers J. Lehman, of Shiloh, R. D. 2, against Arthur Moore Mullins, of North Fairfield.

Lehman said his car was wrecked in May, 1947 while parked off State Route 61 near Shelby. A car driven by Mullins struck the auto, the petition states.

Set for hearing Thursday is an action by Allen Knapp Heating company against Harry Butts, South Main street road, asking a judgment of $284, allegedly due for installing a furnace at the defendant's house.

In a second case set for the same day, Alice M. Richards, administratrix of the estate of M. F. Crawford, deceased, has appealed an action against Frank Dalton.

In her action, appealed from the court of Justice of the Peace G. W. Armstrong, of Sharon township, she, as administratrix of the estate, asks $80 due on a promissory note.

She contends that six shares of stock turned over as security for payment of the note were worthless. Dalton, denied there is anything due on the note or that the shares were worthless. He said the stock was worth more than its $80 face value when turned over to Crawford.

Jurors Give Killer Death

CHICAGO—(AP)—One of two Chicago killers was sentenced to death and the other to 199 years imprisonment yesterday in a riotous court session almost broken up by the defendants' wives.

The two were accused of killing three men and wounding two others during a gang style ride to western suburbs Dec. 12, 1947.

When a criminal court jury announced a death penalty for James Morelli, 21. Mrs. Lowell Fentress, 20, let out a scream. She is the wife of the other defendant, Howell Fentress, 20, and apparently assumed the same penalty was in store for him.

Harry Simmons, 151 West Third street, was burned about the face and legs last night when gasoline-soaked sawdust shoveled into a coal stove exploded.

The accident occurred at the Frank Williams Transfer and Storage company, 204 North Franklin avenue, at 5:47 p. m. last night. Simmons was treated and released at General hospital.

Firemen said that Simmons scooped up a pile of the sawdust and threw it into a coal stove. The stove exploded and the flame jumped back at Simmons. The entire room caught fire, but firemen arrived in time to extinguish the blaze and damage was not heavy.

Pledge of Allegiance to Flag

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Dayton Publishers Explain Why Newspapers Consolidate

DURING the last two weeks, residents of the city of Dayton have been learning to live without the service, friendliness and association of one of that community's oldest and most highly respected institutions.

Through a consolidation of ownership, one of three daily newspapers formerly operated there has been discontinued and the remaining two are brought under one ownership. The morning Journal and afternoon Herald, formerly published by Lewis B. Rock, have been bought by former Governor James M. Cox, who also publishes the afternoon Daily News. The two former Rock papers have been combined to become the Journal-Herald, a morning paper, leaving the Daily News alone in the afternoon field.

With the consolidation, Dayton has moved into the ever-growing list of Ohio and United States cities where economic pressure, mounting costs and ever-expanding services now expected of newspapers have made it necessary for the papers to come under one ownership in order to remain financially stable and hence independently strong in the conduct of their business. Without strong economic stability no newspaper can do even a passably good job in a community.

In Dayton, the consolidation was explained by the two publishers as being unavoidable and the inevitable result of inflationary and economic pressure.

Publisher Rock of the Journal, whose interests were bought by Cox, stated:

"Annual wages to mechanical production workers, a major cost to newspapers, which before Pearl Harbor ranged between $2400 and $2800, now have reached the level between $5000 and $6000, a fact which will startle most other workers in the community. It should not remain unsaid that certain collective bargaining units, unmindful of economic consequences, after earnest and repeated explanations and warnings, have insisted on pay-check increases that not only have exceeded increased cost of living but disregarded economic parity and logical reasoning. In doing so they have contributed heavily to their own present insecurity, that of their fellow employes and the company which furnished them their livelihood.

"Newsprint, another major cost, and the raw material of newspaper production, purchased before the war for $45, now costs $101 for each ton."

"The degree of severity of cost increases to newspapers is without precedent. These conditions, in the main, have convinced management that consolidation is the solution for stable press conditions in this community."

Former Gov. Cox, in his statement, traces the long trend of newspaper consolidations, citing as typical examples such cities as Toledo, Akron, Youngstown, Canton, Lima and Hamilton in Ohio and Chattanooga, Atlanta, Louisville, Minneapolis, Des Moines, Rochester, Kansas City and Seattle in other states.

Stressing that no newspaper can perform its function nor progress in quality without financial stability, Cox cites as examples contributing to the necessity for consolidation the fact that the three Dayton newspapers spent during 1948 $2,283,000 for newsprint paper as compared with $695,000 in 1941, and $1,615.200 for mechanical labor in 1948 as compared with $682,300 in 1941.

To every newspaperman, there is a sense of loss and a twinge of sorrow at the passing from activity of a good and worthy newspaper enterprise. Newspapermen, from publisher on down, have come to realize in the last 20 years, however, that they can do a better job of news reporting, and can support better and stronger editorial policies and do a more effective job for advertisers at less cost when they are on a sound basis, financially. In the last 10 years, some 300 U. S. dailies have merged, consolidated or suspended. Newsweek magazine points out that more than 50 per cent of U. S. cities of 50,000 population or more are now served by one newspaper enterprise.

One Language Not Always Enough

EVERY AMERICAN who has done much traveling in other countries knows that at passenger stations, hotels, shops and restaurants in most parts of the world it is not too difficult to find someone who speaks English. Contrast this situation with the plight of the French traveler who, arriving the other day at one of the larger air terminals in this country, had to wait while the terminal was scoured for a clerk who could speak French and thus take care of her requirements.

The reasons are not hard to find. The American tourist has long been an important customer for most countries, and hence knowledge of English is a helpful business asset in them. Besides, young students are interested in America, and learn the language as a part of following this interest.

Americans, on the other hand, have never catered generally to foreign tourists, and the interest of the usual American student in other peoples and countries is limited. The result is that many Americans cannot even tell the difference between French and Spanish, much less understand them.

With development of world conditions, Americans are beginning to sense the need to know other peoples better. One way to begin would be by paying more attention to learning other languages.

Adding Color To Boat Races

COLLEGE boat races are colorful affairs, but apparently can be made more so. At the recent Palm Beach regatta the traditional white shirts were abandoned for shirts bearing the colors of the individual colleges. Yale had blue, Cornell red and Princeton orange. Pennsylvania did not conform; it stuck to white instead of wearing red and blue shirts.

This will make it easier for spectators to tell who is winning. Of course many oarsmen dispense with shirts altogether. In that case their college colors might be painted on their backs.

A Voice From the Country

Ask Restriction On Margarine Profits

By LOUIS BROMFIELD

THE butter-oleomargine fight has come into the open again and it might be well to analyze the true elements in a situation, which affects every citizen far beyond the point of whether oleo is cheaper than butter or whether it be taxed or not. Probably no controversy in American history as presented, has caused so much confusion in the minds of the people. This is so because the issue has been based, by the oleo interests, upon the easy political dodge of cheaper living costs and partly because many of the newspaper editorials on the subject have been written with perhaps incomplete knowledge of the whole question. Very great and even economically profound implications lie behind the battle.

BROMFIELD

Let me say at the outset that most of the butter producers have long since abandoned their fight to maintain the tariff tax which the oleo interests refer to as "discriminatory."

The butter people seek only two things—the restriction of the oleo peoples' attempt to deceive by the close imitation possible and some sort of restriction upon the immense profit potentialities of the oleo and oleo oil manufacturers. With the butter business, which can never create its product at a figure anywhere near the production costs of oleomargarine, knocked out by competition from big business and monopoly, there is no limit within reason to the profits of the industrially produced oleo.

Essentially the struggle is one between big business and tacit monopoly on one side and small private enterprise on the other and, as such, it touches the very foundations of our social economy and our political future.

Butter is produced largely by some 4,500 creameries, mostly individually or co-operatively owned and by the thousands of dairy and general farmers who produce the cream from which butter is made. Oleomargarine, an assembly line industrial product, is concentrated in the hands of 28 companies with 65 per cent of production in the hands of only five gigantic industrial corporations such as Proctor and Gamble and vast Lever Brothers' interests.

* * *

Packages Similar.

SINCE the very beginning, the whole purpose of the oleo interests has been to attempt the imitation of butter as closely as possible. Their slogan might well have been not "as good as butter" but "the same as butter" which oleo is not.

One only has to look about in a grocery to see oleo packaged exactly like butter, nearly always in yellow cartons, with dairy scenes for ornamentation, even to such deceptive trade names as "Churngold."

The obvious campaign is less to imitate than to deceive and plenty of us know even today how often in restaurants and dining cars, oleo is served as butter.

It seems to me that the element of unfair and deceptive competition in this respect is clear as crystal.

The oleo interests, down to the oil refining plants, represent big business and the oleo interests have been very successful in dividing the dairy from the soybean and cotton elements in the farm bloc so that agricultural representation has become badly weakened and divided.

They have accomplished this by holding up phantom profits on the materials used in making their synthetic product to cotton and soybean farmers, who, largely speaking, represent the most destructive and greedy element in American agriculture and are already the most highly subsidized at the taxpayers expense.

Before the war, foreign vegetable oils, produced by labor in Asia and Africa, paid at what in this country could only be regarded as slave wages, were largely used in oleo manufacture.

During the war, the oleo manufacturing interests found these cheap foreign oils unavailable and were forced to use home-produced cottonseed and soybean oils, but once the same interests have won their fight, there is no reason, judging from the whole history of big business, to prevent them from shifting back again to cheap labor materials produced abroad.

The American cotton and soybean people, left holding the bag, will then ask for another protective tariff to add to living costs.

* * *

Lasting Benefits Doubted.

PROTECTIVE tariffs are by no means dead and can never be until that incredible day when there is free trade and universal leveling off of wages and living standards, to a point far below that to which the American people are accustomed.

In the meanwhile, there will be either tariffs on imported goods or internal subsidies and high prices, both paid inside the country, by the average tax-paying citizen. The popular assumption that wholly unrestricted oleo production will provide a universally cheap table spread, by which everyone will benefit is merely a silly oversimplification of a very complex and profound problem.

It is significant that the interest in tariffs generally has shifted from the big manufacturing interests to organized labor and small business, because obviously American labor cannot compete with slave labor wages in the more primitive parts of the world and small business cannot compete with the power of the price controls exercised by vast cartels and tacit monopolies.

The question of tacit monopolies and hidden understandings among a few enormous industrial producers is one which has consumed endless precious hours in the Supreme Court, the Interstate Commerce Commission and other governmental agencies.

Where understandings among vast cartels and interests begin and end is a difficult problem but even the average citizen knows that they operate.

The whole oleo question is one in which both organized labor and the Small Business Men's association might well take an interest, and the average citizen along with them. It is not as simple or as demagogic a question as the oleo interests have tried to make it.

Incidentally, I have in my possession an original letter, circulated among the oleo interests, pointing out the great advantages of pouring plenty of money into the advertising accounts of newspapers, especially in the "butter" areas, as mean an insult to the integrity of the American press as has been perpetrated in a long time.

I might also point out that great cartels and monopolies are the first step in the death of real free enterprise and in the direction of state socialism. There arrives a point, when as Europe well knows, they become intolerable and the state takes over.

Socialism arrives at the point where free enterprise has ceased utterly to exist and the big business monopolies have taken over.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Congress Has Promising 'Raw Material'

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—The new House of Representatives has now been shaken down, had a chance to settle in new offices, and has taken a look at each other. Also, outsiders have had a chance to look at them. The results have not been disappointing. In brief, the new Congress looks good. It has more war veterans, more youngsters who take their work seriously, more promising raw material than any since before Pearl Harbor. Many never dreamed they would be elected. Many are nervous, shy, and worried about which fork to pick up in Washington. But the main thing is that they know what happened to the 80th Congress, and, if they can help it, they aren't going to let history repeat

PEARSON

Obviously, most of the new congressmen are Democrats. But the new Republicans seem to have a lot on the ball, too. Anyway, here is a cross-section of the 81st freshmen, the men who hold the balance of power on Capitol Hill and who will shape your lives for the next few years:

* * *

Newsmen To Schoolteachers.

HARRY DAVENPORT, Pennsylvania Democrat—Publisher of weekly newspaper; ran against GOP John McDowell of the un-American Affairs committee, never expecting to win. Now that he's in Congress—much to his surprise—he'll push hard for the liberal program he advocated . . . Chuck Gross, Iowa Republican—popular Midwest radio commentator of Waterloo; defeated reactionary John Gwynne in the Republican primaries by going to the voters over the heads of the political machines . . . Jerry Ford, Michigan Republican—healthy replacement for Bartel Jonkman, who was one of the most backward of the 80th Congress. Just married, with a new home and a new job, Ford will be a mighty busy congressman . . . Thurman Crook, Democrat, of South Bend, Ind.—known as the only "legalized crook" in Congress, he comes to Washington after 35 years as a high-school teacher. Will work for better educational benefits.

* * *

New Southern Solons.

THURMOND CHATHAM, North Carolina—Wealthy manufacturer of blankets, tweeds and textiles (Chatham Mills) with outstanding war record in submarine service. Open-minded on major issues . . . Charles Bennett, Jacksonville, Florida—A 38-year-old attorney who's proud the real estate lobby fought him. Led troops behind Jap lines during the Philippine invasion—until stricken with polio. Still fighting . . . Syd Herlong, Florida—Great friend of the orange. Will steer middle-of-road course while squeezing last drop of political juice from his district's citrus crops . . . Carl Elliott, Jasper, Alabama—Successfully bucked local political machine with 129 speeches in 35 days—all pointing up need for improved rural housing and higher educational standards . . . Hugo Sims, South Carolina—Battled against real estate lobby, and will keep on battling. Among the top nominees for "young men of the nation" selected by Junior Chamber of Commerce . . . John Golden, Kentucky—One of the few new Republicans elected in the South. Careful, conscientious.

* * *

From Industrial East.

FOSTER FURCOLO, Massachusetts Democrat—Came up the hard way, washing dishes and waiting on table at Yale. Got a law degree, saw naval action in the Pacific, elected in a GOP district by fighting high prices and bad housing . . . Harry O'Neill, Pennsylvania Democrat—son of a Scranton coal miner. Harry had 14 brothers and sisters, began life as a barber, switched to insurance, is a strong union man, will go down the line for the Fair Deal. . . . Abraham Rubicoff, Connecticut Democrat—gave up lucrative law practice to run for Congress. Handsome, intelligent, big vote-getter, will follow liberal line . . . John McGuire, Connecticut Democrat—friendly, small-town insurance agent who's been undefeated in local and state elections. In his spare time, he'll boost Connecticut's new governor, Chester Bowles, for the White House . . . Peter Rodino, Newark, N. J., Democrat—fills the seat of Fred Hartley of Taft-Hartley Act fame, and has political views exactly the opposite. . . . Hugh Addonizio, Newark, N. J., Democrat—may have the making of a new Fiorello La Guardia.

* * *

Farm Program.

THE National Grange ideas in the farm section of President Truman's economic report was no accident. The Grange's canny master, Albert S. Goss, got in some strong licks for his "flexible price supports" idea at a White House meeting just before the economic message went to Congress.

Goss advised Truman against a fixed scale of price supports, such as the 60-100 per cent of parity scale advocated by the Farmers Union to protect farm income and production.

"One cure-all won't heal all the aches of agriculture," Goss told the President. "For instance, you can't cure the ache in orange raising—which is high transportation costs—with the same medicine you use for egg production, where the ache is high feed costs.

"But, most important, we should gear price supports not only to insure ample production of the commodities we need most for exports and domestic consumption, but to prevent surpluses of crops selling at high prices.

"A flexible program that will enable the government to change support prices at any time we have too much of one crop or too little of another is the only answer," continued Goss. "It's the best approach, in our opinion, to a stable agriculture and fair prices to consumers."

"That makes good sense," commented Truman. And his economic message read as if he meant it. However, whether the Grange philosophy will be embodied in the farm bill now being prepared by the agriculture department remains to be seen. Most insiders think it won't.

Assignment: America

She Detects Phony Bills

By INEZ ROBB

NEW YORK—Everybody wants to make money in these inflationary times, including an uncommon number of persons who want to make it in the basement. Counterfeits, that is. Hardly anything makes Uncle Sam madder than people who insist on making their own money at home. Yet the nation and the world at large was never more full of bogus money, American brand. This touching allegiance of forgers, even foreign ones, to the American standard is readily explained by the fact American money, even a seven dollar bill, will buy much more abroad than any other kind of currency.

INEZ ROBB

There are now so many phony $10 and $20 bills in circulation that the government has taken to warning the public through the medium of old-fashioned slides in the nation's motion picture houses.

At least, Uncle Sam warned me to wise up the 10's and 20's situation when I was at the neighborhood Bijou last night. I assume he is equally solicitious for other sections of the nation.

There is probably only one person in this money-mad metropolis on whom Uncle Sam is wasting his warning. That is Miss Minnie Adam, who can draw a bead on a phony bill at 100 paces.

Miss Minnie, a small competent woman with soft brown hair and soft brown eyes, has been drawing a bead on bad bills for 30 years.

If Miss Minnie, who works for the Chase National bank, says a bill is phony, the Federal Reserve never talks back. In all those years, a counterfeit bill has never gotten past this mild, laconic woman. At least, if any counterfeit got past Miss Minnie, it fooled the government experts, too and sort of deserves to be in circulation.

Familiarity with their handiwork has bred contempt in this woman for all forgers. They have merited Miss Minnie's disdain not so much because they are criminals but because they are stupid, careless and minus the sense the Almighty gave geese.

* * *

"Home Talent" Is Crude.

YOU WOULD never believe the slip-shod forgeries that are caught in Miss Minnie's clever fingers!

She can forgive men for not being as expert engravers as the artists in the United States treasury.

But Miss Minnie believes that anyone who starts out to make his own money ought to have the intelligence to follow a few of the simple rules broadcast by the government to help the honest public detect swindles.

Miss Minnie, who has eyes like radar, simply looks at the faces on each bill as it riffles through her fingers. If George Washington isn't looking his usual robust self, if Abraham Lincoln looks a bit "pek-kid," or if Andy Jackson seems a little off color, Miss Minnie has a forgery in her grip.

It is as simple and as complicated as that. She just "knows." One look at Alexander Hamilton on a ten-dollar bill, and she knows whether it is good for three lamb chops, a loaf of bread and bunch of carrots or good for nothing.

She says it is all a matter of engraving. The best men are working for the government not themselves.

Furthermore, the best American counterfeits come from abroad, says Miss Minnie, striking a harsh and critical blow at American craftsmanship. She has seen some European duplicates of American folding money almost as good as the original.

But not good enough to fool Miss Minnie. The Chase National Bank is pretty proud of the fact that 42 $50-bills received from abroad last spring looked the real McCoy to a number of its brass.

But when the 42 bills got to Miss Minnie, she flipped them rapidly through her fingers and laid aside 36 forgeries!

When I asked Miss Minnie if she was ever tempted to go home and stir up a batch of currency in her kitchen, she said "No" and then added:

"But if I did, I certainly could do a better job than these crude native bunglers!"

Don't Coddle Jealousy

By ELSIE ROBINSON

DON'T YOU think it's about time we stopped sympathizing with jealous people?

We run the blue pencil through such infantile demonstrations as horse stealing and murder, yet we go right on coddling jealousy as if it were something to be proud of, whereas it's a silly, selfish childish hangover that is never justified and never returns a decent percentage.

Jealousy is one of the most approved ways of getting fouled up in marriage, yet marriage covers a multitude of sins. The plain truth is, you've got no more license to be jealous of your mate than you have of the postman.

You don't own the postman and what he does in life is up to him.

It might hurt you a little, you may feel that it's going to smash your life, but you haven't any business to let it smash your life.

Marriage sounds lovely but after all it is a very prosaic thing and it demands a tremendous amount of fair play. And its happiness or unhappiness is 90 per cent up to you, pardner.

It's your job to carry on with as little waste motion and noise as possible for the good of the gang. Jealousy is both waste motion and noise. Jealousy gets you nowhere and it doesn't bring the other fellow back. If he wants to flit he's going to and you might as well try to teach a humming bird to scratch for worms as to attempt to stop him.

Jealousy is a one man adventure and you're a fool if you start shoving it around.

So stop the snivveling and pussy footing. Look out and see how many folks are needing what you can give to them. Look into the sad and desperate eyes that cry to you for help and stop thinking that you're the world's first and greatest martyr.

It Says Here:

—By KEN WOODMAN

IF YOUR dictionary contains the word antrycide, put a big check mark beside it because that word may play an important role in the future of civilization. It is the name of a new drug which combats sleeping sickness—the scourge of the African continent.

* * *

Hopeful observers say that if antrycide can clean sleeping sickness out of Africa that vast area could not only provide new homes for millions in overcrowded parts of the world but could also become a gigantic new source of food and minerals which now lie untouched.

* * *

The British, who virtually control Africa, are wide awake to these possibilities. They envisage in the once-dark continent a resurgence of their crumbling empire and a place to retreat to, if an atomic war should blast Europe and their island into uninhabitability.

Poets Must Be Insecure.

It is with sorrow, but with we-told-you-so overtones, that we note the passing of the League to Support Poetry, deceased at the tender age of 12 years This was a noble experiment. And, like most noble experiments, it was foredoomed to disillusionment and an early demise.

Its very title was a contradiction in terms. For one does not support poets. A poet supported ceases to be a poet. Feed him well cut his hair build up his bank account, provide him with security and what is left to him that is poetic? He can no longer pine and sigh, nor lament, nor even fill his hungry belly with feasting upon the beauties of nature.

For the poet is never secure. It is his battle against insecurity, his contention with the buffetings of fate, which kindles the poetic flame within him. He is poor. He is wretched.

Could Shelley or Keats have lived in affluence and remained the bards of beauty? Or Edgar Allan Poe, without want or neuroses, have longed for his lost Lenore?—Toledo Blade.

Little Neighbor

—By ANNE CAMPBELL

I have a little neighbor
Who runs gaily in and out
My house, and how I miss her
If she were not about!

Her years are just eleven,
So her footstep is as light
As her young heart, which gladdens
My life and makes it bright!

How nice, now my own children
Are grown, that there should be
A charming little neighbor
To come and visit me!

How fine the world when children
Can spread their heart's pure gold,
And bring their gifts to bless us
When we are growing old!

It sounds a lot like asking that more water be put into a tank to help save a fellow already over his head and yelling for help.

South Moves Production Up In Paper

Industry Aided By Fast Tree Growth

MOBILE, ALA — (AP) — The south is cashing in on its No 1 crop—trees—with an industrial growth that is fast pushing it to the front of the nation's paper and pulp industry.

While New Englanders have been complaining about losing some of their textile industry to southern states, the expansion of the paper industry southward has come about relatively unnoticed.

At Georgetown, S C there is a huge plant capable of turning out more than 1,430 tons of paper board daily.

That's equal to almost the entire paper and pulp output of 12 southern states back in 1921.

Within the past quarter of a century, the pine timber belt from Maryland to Texas has become the nation's fastest growing pulp and paper section.

Output of other sections has grown, too, as the nation's paper demands expanded

In 1921 there were 49 small plants in the south producing about 1,790 tons of paper a day

Now, smoke is pouring from almost 100 mills. They're turning out about 20,000 tons of paper a day, almost 11 times the 1921 rate.

While many of the older northern mills are adapted for book paper, tissues and specialties, the southern plants are geared for volume Their newer-type mills, utilizing latest refinements in paper making machinery and processes, get more production at lower operating costs

Quick growth of trees is the major factory in the southward expansion of the industry.

In the warm southern climate, loblolly and slash pines mature to pulpwood size in 20 to 40 years That's more than twice as fast as in the north.

Senior High School News

MHS Word Tour Reveals What's Doing

By MARGIE GOODMAN

Too many Mansfielders have only a nodding acquaintance with our Senior high school. It's true that most of you have visited our new stadium, Arlin field, and attended basketball games played in the school gymnasium, but there's much more to M H.S. than that.

We'll start our fifty-cent conducted tour with the office of the assistant principal, Mr. Herman Bishop In this room, right next to the main office, is the "nerve center" of the school, the public address system. Over this loud speaker every morning all announcements are made—anything from a profound Armistice Day prayer to the zaniest of songs or poems advertising a coming dance With this system it is possible to address a single room, all the home rooms of a single class, or the entire student body

MARGIE

Down the hall a ways we come to the office of Miss Pearl Danback, Dean of Girls Here all students arriving or leaving after the tardy bell must stop and get an excuse This is really a busy place when a school bus arrives late, or when the "kids" migrate to Massillon for one of those famous football games In this room also the Hypho staff (the school paper) makes its headquarters, and many a last minute article is hustled in here just in time to meet the deadline

Now for the second floor. Located between the two large study halls is our very fine library. Here you may find anything from Glamour Magazine to a three-foot-twenty-pound Webster. Encyclopedias, biographies, fiction, and non-fiction all call this room home.

The home economics laboratory is located at one end of the long corridor When the delectable aroma of freshly-baked rolls comes floating down the hall they practically have to lock the doors to keep out the boys and girls who claim to suffer from malnutrition

If you find your breath coming in short gasps by the time you reach the end of the third flight of stairs we attribute that either to the altitude or to anxiety over the approaching chemistry test

If you're a biology student the former probably is true.

On this floor we have the biology, chemistry, and physics laboratories, the choral rooms, and even a greenhouse Do you detect an odor of, as it is known to the layman, "rotten eggs"? Fear not, it's only the chemistry class using sulphur in an experiment. Why, we hardly notice it!

As the class leaves the biology room, don't be surprised if you see some of them trailing the digestive system of a clam, or clutching a frog's head in their hand. Dissection is one of the most interesting phases of this course.

But what is that "yummy" odor floating down from the fourth floor? Could it be "wiener and bean day" at M.H.S ! There goes the bell! Watch out for the hordes of hungry students whose only motto is, "All's fair in love, war, and the lunch line!"

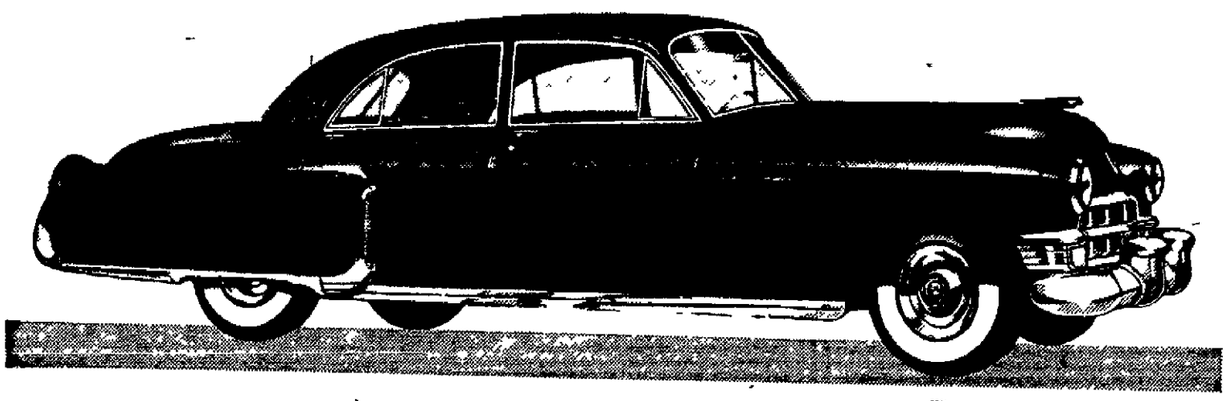
Akin to Automatic Propulsion!



White sidewall tires available at additional cost.

When the great new Cadillac engine was in the final stages of development, a Cadillac engineer made a test run up Pike's Peak. "It felt," he said upon his return, "as if the car were moving by automatic propulsion " When you drive a 1949 Cadillac—powered by this magnificent new engine—you will understand what the engineer was talking about. The power flow is so smooth—and the supply of power so seemingly inexhaustible—that the driver is scarcely aware of the engine's existence. Owners are finding that this smooth, even, effortless flow of power does far more than increase the car's agility. It adds immeasurably to handling ease and maneuverability. It increases the confidence of the person at the wheel, and thereby makes him a better driver And it increases the car's over all safety to a remarkable degree. It has long been true that a search for the finest leads inevitably to Cadillac But, today, the sign posts are marked so plainly that searching is not required. There is, literally, nowhere else to go—if you want the ultimate in motor car quality and satisfaction.

School Bids On 3 Shelby Items Set

New Elementary Building Included

SHELBY—Decision was reached at a meeting last week of the school board here to set Thursday, March 20 as the date for the acceptance and opening of bids covering three major items.

(1) Bids for the construction of the new Central Elementary school to be erected on the site of the present school building.

Plans of the architects E. C., and G. T. Landberg of Cincinnati were approved and accepted by the board at the meeting. The plans call for the construction of a 21 classroom building with a Cafeteria, library and office facilities. Bids are to be made on these plans.

(2) Bids on the demolition of the present structure.

(3) Bids on th vocational farm shop. There will be two bids considered on this addition to the high school building. The first calls for a single story addition and the alternate will be a two story structure with a music room on the second floor.

Byron Carmean, superintendent of the Shelby schools, said that advertisements for the bids will be made on Feb. 3. He also said that the decisions of the board were made in order to obtain an idea as to how near the board could come to complete the program.

The school board also renamed the west side elementary school the Auburn school. The decision was made in order to eliminate confusion and to identify the school with the street on which it stands. Since the earlier name proposed, Hayes school, would present the problem of two Hayes schools until the old structure was razed

SCHOOL DAYS BENEFICIAL—An enrollee of the weekly informational Thursday night Richland county Young Couples schools, Mrs. Ralph Hulit, is shown in her Osbun road farm home kitchen with a pressure cooker as she cans meat for future consumption.

Young Farm Pair Active

The Ralph Hulits, of Osbun road, are a representative Richland county young farm couple.

Both take active roles in classes teaching better farming methods and Ralph, who specializes in dairying, is eager to learn modern methods as he works his own 70-acre farm and operates another 120-acre one on shares with his father-in-law, Arthur Pugh.

He also feeds 50 head of Chester White hogs and keeps six sows in addition to his herd of 30 registered Guernsey cattle He sells the milk which is obtained by using two milking machine units in the milking parlor system

That milks two cows at a time with four always in the milking parlor and the others waiting their turns in an adjoining loafing shed. Upon admittance to the milking parlor the cows know their places and go to their proper stanchions.

Pugh raises 200 head of New Hampshire Red hens and shares in the farm chores with Ralph They built a wooden silo for grass silage and are completing a large sheet metal shed to be used for storage purposes of grain and machinery.

Ralph has been on his own the past four years after leaving his nearby home where he aided his father, Henry S. Hulit. His father also contributed labor in the construction of the much-needed shed for storage.

MILKING PARLOR ACTIVITY—Ralph Hulit, Osbun road farmer, is putting a milking machine on a cow in the milking parlor of his barn. Four stanchions hold the cows being milked in pairs by two units as the rest of the milkers wait their turns in an adjoining loafing shed. Use of the machines permits milking 12 cows in 45 minutes. There are 30 head of registered Guerniseys in his herd, 16 of them milked by machine. Hulit is entered in the Winter Dairy schools and with his wife in the Young Couples schools sponsored in the county at the present time.

Weekly Classes Set Until Mid-February

By BILL HERRING
News-Journal State Editor

School days for farmers and young couples will get the Richland county agricultural spotlight until mid-February.

C. N. McGrew, county extension agent, is directing cooperative extension work in agriculture and home economics during the period. The program is being sponsored by the county commissioners, Ohio State university and the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

A series of weekly Thursday night Young Couples schools opened last week and continues through Feb. 17. The Winter Dairy schools open Tuesday evening and conclude on Feb. 16.

The Young Couples schools are a revival of last year's popular gatherings that offered something extra by the way of informational meetings to help answer the many farm and family problems that arise.

Herd health is a topic as important to dairy product consumers as to dairy men. Tuesday's initial session will be conducted by Earl Jones, extension agronomist. The topic will be the pasture program as it is related to a complete soil and water management program.

The meetings will be held in the Common Pleas Court room at the court house and start at 8 p. m. All Young Couples schools sessions are billed at the same place at 8 p m Thursdays for five more weeks. McGrew expects 30 couples to attend and between 75 to 100 dairymen to participate in the Winter Dairy schools. The organization meeting at the start of the month attracted 80 persons.

SPEAKERS SECURED

Perry Elsworth, extension dairy technologist, and C L Blackman, extension dairy husbandman, head the speakers for the Feb 3 afternoon meeting of the Winter Dairy schools in the Johns park pavilion. Proper milking method and a clinic on the care of milking machines will be stressed.

A three-day daytime schedule on Feb. 14-15-16 concludes the Winter Dairy schools instruction at Johns park pavilion. Kenneth Battles, extension engineer, will speak on dairy barn arrangement, re-arrangement and conduct a clinic.

Ralph Van Buren of the Northern Ohio Breeders association, will attend Winter Dairy schools sessions and discuss breeding program and problems as well as give first-hand information about the new "central laboratory" system for a D H I and owner-sampler testing program.

Thursday the second in the weekly Young Couples schools offers Guy Miller rural economist of Ohio State university, speaking on long range farm plans.

On the 27th Miller speaks on soil conservation as it effects the family

Marketing and farm produce will be discussed at the Feb. 3 session by Mahlon Swtet, extension poultryman from OSU. On Feb. 10 Lucile Pepoon, child development specialist of OSU, speaks on family relationship—child development.

Alma Garvin, OSU extension nutritionist, will speak on the family garden plan and the family budget at the final meeting on Feb. 17.

ASSISTING McGREW

Mabel Spray, county home demonstration agent, is assisting McGrew in the Young Couples schools presentation.

McGrew reports that unforeseen circumstances forced the postponement to a later date the business phase of the county Dairy Service unit and urges all dairymen to attend other dairy schools planned by the unit board of directors

The dairy officials feel that county dairy interests will benefit from attendance at meetings such as the Winter Dairy schools offer.

Damage Suit Asks $11,890

BUCYRUS — Damages totaling $11,890 is asked in a suit filed in Common Pleas court here by Harry A Bedol, doing business as the Marshallan Manufacturing company, Cleveland, against the Plymouth Stamped Metal company and George R James, both of Galion.

Bedol alleges he furnished the Galion company with tools and dies to be used in manufacturing automobile hub caps and bathroom fixtures. In 1948, according to the petition, the Galion firm discontinued making the articles and the tools were taken from the Galion firm by James and stored in a Shiloh factory.

The plaintiff alleges he asked the company to resume manufacturing in December, 1947, and when production was not resumed he asked for return of the equipment

The petition states the equipment has not been returned and now is believed lost, stolen or destroyed by reason of negligence of the defendants.

In reading, the eye sweeps across a line of type in a series of jumps, focusing on the type at successive points.

$18,333 Fee Collection Suit Filed

Crawford Attorneys Cite Realty Action

BUCYRUS — Owen W. Carmel, Galion realtor, is named defendant in a $18,333 action for collection of attorneys' fees filed in Common Pleas court here by Attorneys Calvin E Knisely of Galion and J. D. Sears of Bucyrus.

The two attorneys allege they successfully represented Carmel in an action whereby he was awarded a one-third interes. in 330 lots in Oakland county, Michigan and he had agreed to give them as fees a sum equal to one-third of the value of all property or money realized by him in his claim.

The plaintiffs allege the case was upheld in both district and state Supreme courts and by their negotiations, Carmel obtained the entire interest in 110 lots in the sub-division.

By terms of the agreement the plaintiffs allege Carmel owes them $18,333, the lots being valued in the petition at $55,000.

A temporary injunction also is asked to prevent Carmel from selling any of the lots while the action is pending.

Ashland Bank Fills Vacancy

ASHLAND—Morgan Minamyer has been elected president of the Farmers Bank of Ashland to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Charles Freer who is retiring because of ill health. Minamyer has been a member of the board of directors of the bank for 35 years

Other members of the board include H. M. Clark, chairman, Robert Ingmand, vice president and secretary; D E Clark, C R Freer and E. E. Brown.

Other officers include Virgil L. Cox, vice president and loan officer, Robert Kopp, cashier and Stanton Rupert, assistant cashier. Tellers re-employed include Robert Semler, Harvey Heifner, Harold McBride and Ray Heckman.

School Plans Operetta For Jan. 25 Night

NEW WASHINGTON — The comic operetta, "The Sunbonnet Girl" by Morgan and Johnson, will be presented at 8 p. m. Tuesday, Jan 25 in the local high school auditorium by the seventh and eighth grades of New Washington high school.

The cast includes Sandra Ackerman, Naomi Dummett, Bargara Scheer, James Gardner, LaVon Springer, Arthur Hieber, Robert Fike, Marilyn Zaelest, Kenneth Mohrkoff, Shirley Brown, Gene Kraft, Shirley Ann Shealy, Naomi Jean Bucher, Tommy Nye and Anita Schafstall.

The chorus includes Beverly Harrer, Phyllis Johnson, Donna Lee Langjaber, Nancy Lucas, Ethel Mason, Joan McCarthy, Dan Mayers, Jean Springer, Grenda Belle Wolfe, Phyllis Pine, Robert Bordner, Eldon Cleland, Jimmy Patterson, Gale Rettig, Henry Rhodes, Robert Stephenson, Eugene Ulmer, Edwin Mason and Edward White.

Miss Freda Loyer is the director.

Farm Bureau Price Support Position Firm

COLUMBUS—Ohio farmers do not want the regimentation of quotas and production controls which would follow if the government guaranteed 90 per cent or more of parity on all crops in peacetime, the board of trustees of the Ohio Farm Bureau federation, said last week in a statement.

They did give full endorsement to the principle of flexible price supports as contained in the Hope-Aiken Agricultural Act of 1948.

The statement followed the Ohio Farm Bureau's resolution as adopted at its annual meeting Dec. 1. It followed closely the resolutions of the American Farm Bureau federation and the National Grange which also endorsed the Agricultural Act of 1948.

Police still are investigating the reported theft of money from Helen's Family store in the downtown district.

Galion Proud of Cunningham Record

Mother of 6 Active In Lodge

By CATHERINE BORICK
(N-J State Correspondent)

GALION—Six children, all under 10 years old, including a set of twins, an immaculate home, and time to spend four years "going through the chairs" of Naomo chapter, Order of Eastern Star, is the record of an attractive Galion mother.

She is the new worthy matron of Naomi chapter, and is launching her fifth year as an officer of the order.

HUSBAND HELPFUL

How does she do it? In an interview which she was reluctant to give, she modestly stated, "With the exception of my husband who is excellent help, and does all of the shopping for everything, including groceries and even the children's clothing, I have a woman only one day each week who helps me clean."

But her husband is abusy man, too. In addition to his duties as secretary of the U.S. Steel Grave Vault company here, of which his father is chairman of the board of directors and general manager, he is an officer of the Masonic Blue Lodge.

"Of course we have a routine schedule which always makes work easier. Then, there is the psychological point of an outside interest making home work easier," Mrs. Cunningham explained.

"We do see that the children go to bed early every night. They never attend a night movie," Mrs. Cunningham added.

CHILDREN MANNERLY

In meeting the family it can be observed that each child is mannerly, and has the quality of culture about him. Probably one reason for such an orderly household is the fact each child has his responsibilities. The older children make the beds and help with the dishes. Before going to bed each night, all of their toys are put away by the children, and they are taught to straighten up their playroom.

The older children help some with the younger ones by seeing that the smaller children have their faces and hands washed," Mrs. Cunningham offered.

All of the children weekly attend the Sunday school of the First Methodist church. In the summertime, the children have an enclosed playground with enough equipment to attract their attention, at the rear of their home on Gill avenue. Here they play happily, saving their mother many steps in locating them.

President Forcing Showdown In Steel Expansion Fight

Government Officials Want Faster Growth

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Truman has demanded a showdown in the bitter fight raging between steel industry leaders and certain government officials and legislators.

Crux of the controversy is the question: "Is the steel industry expanding fast enough?"

Practically all the industry men reply "Yes." Many say that production will catch up with demand within two years.

Their opponents say that present expansion programs are so inadequate that a continuing shortage of steel is in prospect and that it will prevent the nation's entire productive plant from reaching full capacity.

More steel plants are needed, they add, for defense reasons. Some might be destroyed in war, and in any case another war would bring far greater demands for steel than the last one did.

Men in the anti-industry camp have even proposed that the government build additional steel plants if industry refuses to build fast enough.

The President in his message to congress on the state of the union indicated he agreed that this should be done if it is true that more plants are needed than industry is willing to build. First, however, he proposed that congress "authorize an immediate study of the adequacy of production facilities."

DESIRES ACTION

If it is found necessary, he continued, congress should "authorize government loans for the expansion of production facilities." Congress, he went on, should "authorize the construction of such facilities if action by private industry fails to meet our needs."

The cry immediately arose throughout the steel world that such a proposal was socialistic and amounted to nationalization of the steel industry.

In the world background of the dispute is the plan of the labor party in Great Britain—second biggest steel-producing nation in the world—to nationalize the steel industry there by May 1950.

The labor party insists that steel expansion be carried on more rapidly than private industry indicates it wishes to proceed.

Here are the crucial statistics on American steel:

1. The steel industry, engaged in a massive post-war expansion program, says it now has the capacity to produce 96,120,930 net tons of raw steel annually, greater than ever before in war or peace. (The commerce department concurs in this figure.) Wartime peak capacity was 95,505,280 tons in 1944. Further expansion now planned is expected to boost capacity to 98,000,000 tons by 1950. Steel capacity has increased 17.5 per cent in the past 10 years.

2. But the planned boost won't be enough, say the men on the other side of the question. C. Girard Davidson, assistant secretary of the interior, says steel production should be increased by 10,000,000 tons annually. Two influential Democratic legislators, Senator Murray of Montana and Rep. Patman of Texas, also say out steel production capacity is 10,000,000 tons short.

A present shortage of steel is admitted by practically all quarters within the industry. Steel magazine, an industry publication, said in December that the steel shortage "gives every promise of continuing for months."

FORESEES 'FIREWORKS'

Iron age, a trade weekly, said recently: "If steel is as short by the end of 1949 as it is now, there will be more fireworks over the capacity problem than the industry has seen yet."

Big steel makers predicted in the summer of 1947 that steel supply would catch up with demand by the end of 1949. What they think now they have not revealed. Commerce department steel specialists won't even guess publicly if supply is even within reaching distance of demand.

The big steel men made their 1947 predictions before a Senate committee. One of the most hopeful was Benjamin F. Fairless, president of United States Steel Corp., which makes about one-third of all American steel. He said:

"I predict that within two years—within two years, or in a shorter time—if the new facilities (planned in the industry's own expansion program) could be added, that production and demand will be in balance domestically in this country."

Senator Murray commented that "the industry's estimates of demand in recent years have been conspicuously and dangerously incorrect."

He added that a 1941 industry estimate "that no additional capacity was needed for an all-out war was in error by the 15,000,000 tons which the government and the industry had to add before the war was over. The war might have been prolonged if the government had accepted the industry's figures."

Davidson said this in a recent speech:

"The eastern steel barons are opposed, as they have always been, to any enlargement of our capacity to make steel. These men of little faith are in constant dread of a depression which might leave them with 'too much' steel."

But the steel men say that to increase the steel-making capacity faster than the present program will reduce, rather than increase the immediate supply of steel. Their reason is that it would take a vast amount of steel to build the steel making plants.

Also, they say, construction costs are now so high that to build more plants would make it necessary to raise steel prices again.

Looming of Sudden Death Brings Flashback on Life

SHEFFIELD, ENGLAND — (AP) — When sudden death looms, does your past life unreel before your mind's eye like a high speed movie?

Or do you just draw a frightened blank?

The chances are four out of ten you'll get that lightning review of the past, says Arnold Freeman, educator and psychologist, who has made a hobby of subjecting popular beliefs to factual test.

For years Freeman, warden of Sheffield's Educational settlement, has been hearing the story that at the moment of sudden death the victim "sees his whole past life spread before him." The psychologists call it a "life tableau."

Freeman wondered about the facts and, as a scientific investigator, came up against the stubborn fact that it isn't practical to ask persons who died suddenly.

So he did the next best thing. In newspaper appeals, he asked persons who almost died in sensational circumstances to relate their "critical moment" experiences.

Freeman's research indicated that the popular beliefs in the matter are two-fifths right. Two out of five persons faces by sudden death do, indeed, see a parade of their experiences in a life tableau. Three out of five have rather stupid thoughts, or are too scared to think anything.

Freeman traced down at least 20 instances of persons who saw "everything pass in review." Thirty-four didn't see a thing, and the testimony of dozens of others was inconclusive.

A Methodist clergyman who fell from his bicycle in front of an automobile reported:

"I saw all my life in detail. It seemed to start with a broken toy in early infancy. The final thought was the grief my mother would feel when my death was reported to her."

A London man rescued from drowning told Freeman:

"I saw myself as a boy riding a railway engine footplate, and there was a mental flash about stealing apples from an orchard."

Another clergyman saw not the past, but the future. As he fell down a stairway, luckily without breaking his neck, he saw his funeral procession and regarded it as very handsome.

Freeman, a philospher-psychologist, tried to draw some conclusions.

"Man seems to live out the past, through the present and on into the future," he said. "His memory seems to be a mechanism to bring his time-self into relation with his space-self. Under exceptional circumstances, under such a jolt as facing death unexpectedly, the time-self in some cases becomes momentarily severed from the space-self, and memory flashes out in detailed reality."

Hold Vet In Slaying

COLUMBUS, — (AP) — A 27-year-old war veteran held today in connection with the bar-room slaying of his wife—says "it's awful to love a woman."

Not only that, said Clay Patterson of Ironton, "it can lead to trouble."

Police said "the trouble" erupted last night with the shooting of Mrs. Elizabeth Ruth Patterson, 21, before 25 horrified patrons in the Winton grill in downtown Columbus.

A few minutes later, Patrolmen Herbert T. Winters and Robert Stevenson walked into the grill and found Mrs. Patterson, a waitress, lying on the floor, shot five times with a .32 caliber revolver.

Butler Wild Life Expert Gets U. S. Post

Random Shots . . .

With

Last week I boldly declared all fishermen (including myself) were crazy, and in short order three things happened.

1—My wife claimed that in my particular case it didn't come from fishing, I was born that way.

2—Bob Peele lurked outside the office, waiting for a chance to even the score.

3—Paul Cropper jr., went fishing and came back with proof that (a) fish are even crazier than fishermen, (b) I'm a darned fool for staying in bed during the winter tune; and (c) anything can happen.

He and George Gernhardt took advantage of the spring-like weather to cast a few flies at Rockwell Springs, and Paul netted two rainbow trout. George was skunked Sunday, but came back with two trout the day before. Paul's largest fish weighed in at two and one-quarter pounds, while the smaller tipped the scales at the one and one-quarter pound mark.

The fish were taken on a black gnat and a yellow fly.

I growled about the disadvantages of ice fishing!

To 'Two Morrow Countians':

Thanks for your kind letter, but did you have to throw me a curve by asking where that Sylvania man found the 43 robins he killed? I've been kicking that around for the past week, and finally decided the weather had something to do with it.

As for robins migrating to the south in the winter, most of them do but I've fed many a robin who braved the cold of Ohio rather than the long flight south.

And just between the three of us, aren't you tickled to death the bird-killer got his feathers plucked?—O. M.

Before a n yone leaps down my throat about foxes climbing trees, I'll do a little leaping myself. It is a rare occurrence, but they will take to trees like a squirrel if all other hope is gone. Versatile darned things, aren't they?

Those feeding shelters at the Barr farm refuge came in handy this week after that cold snap moved in. Game which would otherwise have had a rough time of it foraging for food just stepped into the bread line and went to work!

Now who's willing to sponsor a similar program for our half-starved hunters and fishermen? On second thought, we'd look pretty silly crawling around under all those evergreens donated by local merchants.

Girl Proves She's Smarter Than a Fox

ST. CLAIRSVILLE—(AP)—Ten-year-old Nancy Adams can't be intimidated by a fox.

Her mother, Mrs. Michael Adams, related yesterday how Nancy was walking by the Willow Grove mine portal on an errand when she was attacked by a red fox.

The child screamed and ran. When he caught up, Nancy grabbed the fox by the snout and kept his dangerous jaws clamped while she shouted for help.

First her mother came to the rescue and kicked and shooed at the fox Then a brother arrived and killed the animal with a hoe

Club Schedules Trial Feb. 6

A field trial has been scheduled by the Olentangy Beagle club for Feb. 6, according to newly-elected president Ernest W. Yoakam.

Yoakam and Frederick Conrad, secretary-treasurer, left for Columbus yesterday where they are attending a two-day convention of beagle enthusiasts.

FOUR IN A TREE—"Smoky Joe," the sleek, bluish colored coon dog shown above with Henry Morganstirn, 163 Stark street, set some kind of a record this past week when he ran a coon, a possum, and two foxes into one tree. Henry and his brother, Dave, followed the dog to an old beech tree, and flashed the light up in its limbs. The beam fell on a possum, and it was shot down. The dog remained at the tree, so the light again flashed into the branches. This time a coon was shot down. Twice more this was repeated, and a fox bagged each time. Although foxes seldom climb, they will do so when hard pressed by a dog. These two chose to climb up the hollow beech rather than to face "Smoky," the combination greyhound-wolf. According to Morganstirn, the greyhound strain gives the dog a great advantage in speed over the average coonhound, and the wolf blood gives him superior scent. The dog, a sleek and powerfully built animal, is friendly despite his ancestoral background.—(News-Journal photo)

Driver Held After Crash

Estis Lewis, 21, Shelby, was held under $525 bond yesterday on a charge of drunken driving and driving without a license after his car figured in a crash early Saturday at Springmill and Bowman streets.

He pleaded guilty to both charges and disposition of the cases was postponed until Monday.

Lewis suffered a laceration of the forehead when his car crashed into an auto driven by W. H. Carr of Shelby, at 1:15 a. m. Carr said he had stopped his automobile to pick up a hitchhiker when the Lewis car hit him, causing considerable damage to both vehicles.

'Lewis said he did not see the other car. He refused to be taken to the hospital for treatment of his injuries.

Also in municipal court yesterday was Vernon J. Owens, Pavonia, who was fined $50 and costs for having physical control of a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol.

Guy Long, 5 West Second street, paid a fine of $10 and costs for overtime parking. He had let eight traffic tickets go unpaid.

Edward D. McGhee, of Cleveland, and Donald E. McCaskey, Mansfield, R. D. 6, each paid $10 and costs for speeding.

Dr. Leedy, a native of the Butler area is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Leedy, deceased. His interest in wild life began in his boyhood days at Butler. He is now considered a national authority on the ring neck pheasant.

Leedy got his bachelor of science degree at Miami university, and a PHD from Ohhio State university in 1940. He worked out his PHD degree with a dissertation on the life history and management of ring neck pheasants.

He is joint author of a book on pheasants published by the Wild Life Management institute.

In 1940 Leedy became assistant leader of the Ohio Cooperative Wild Life Research units. He held that post until 1942, when he went to the army as a photo intelligence officer. He became a captain in the Ninth Airforce.

He returned to Ohio State in 1945 as leader of the research units. He is now in Washington to take over his new post there.

While in Ohio, Leedy supervised research work on the ring neck pheasant and other bird species including studies of Hungarian partridge and the mourning dove.

His studies included effects of night mowing of grass crops on pheasants. These studies led to many practical pheasant management measures, associates at O. S. U. said. He is credited with bringing about establishment of refuges for pheasants and use of flushing bars to prevent killing of pheasants by mowing machines.

WANTED: TWO MEN IN THIS AREA FOR EXCEPTIONAL BUSINESS

PREFER SALESMAN OR BUSINESS MAN 45 TO 65

Here is a really big opportunity for two mature businessmen or salesmen to join a company where highest earnings are paid to men 45 to 65. The men who qualify can have big earnings right from the start—and potential exceptional earnings up to $12,000 in a year.

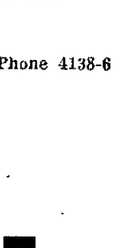
Here are some of the examples of exceptional earnings with our company. These top men prove what can be done in our organization right now. What is being accomplished . . . and now enjoy steady earnings and security.

$125.00 FIRST 2 HOURS

"What an earning figure!" you say. Yet, that's just what J. L. McCullough got in his first 2 hours selling Panther products. And he used the famous Panther Sales Plan as J. D. Wallace did when he earned $164.95 in his first two hours

$167.00 FIRST DAY

That's the kind of earnings you may have dreamed about in the past . . . but it was a very real earning figure for T. D. Stockwell at the end of his very first day out. Or the $225.41 J. N. Thomas made in his first day. Wouldn't you like to have a chance in such a profitable company as that?



$312.00 FIRST WEEK

Think of it! 312 good old American greenbacks for just one week's work . . . and the first week at that. C. C. Hawkins was credited with this amount. And Russ Whitesell started the ball rolling with $238.02 in his first seven days. That kind of income is really convincing, isn't it?

$1912.00 FIRST MONTH

J. J. Creighton, Jr., chalked up nearly $2,000.00 earnings in the space of only one month . . . also his first with Panther. And F. C. Botsford's $1,595.75 in thirty days is certainly not to be overlooked. Don't you hear opportunity knocking right now?

$18395.00 IN A YEAR

"Wow, that's a small fortune." If that's what you're thinking you're right. And that small fortune was earned by W. F. Berry in a year using the same Panther Plan that you can use. Want more convincing figures? G. F. Bushman, $13,988.00 in a year; M. F. Hoover, Jr. $17,142.19 . . . See what we mean!

OUR TOP MEN MOSTLY OVER 50

EARN UP TO $15,000 IN A YEAR!

The above exceptional earnings are certified from many records of top-bracket men. 150 of these men have earned from $400 to $3,000 in a month. We encourage exceptional earnings at start and place no ceiling on expanding earnings year after year with a patented product (U.S. Pat. No. 2,392,813)

Present expansion of our sales force creates need for addition of two men in this territory. Our most successful men are those able to travel two or three weeks at a time—outdoors in healthful fascinating occupation. Write or wire today, telling us your name, age and other details about yourself. PRESIDENT, Dept. HH, P.O. Box 711, Fort Worth 1, Texas.

CHURCH NEWS

Ralph B. Harper, 368 Orange street, has been elected general superintendent of the Mt. Calvary Baptist Church school again this year, with Robert B. Staples, 128 North Adams street, associate superintendent. Harper is beginning his third year in this part of the church work and is looking forward to another successful year in the school.

The enrollment of the school increased from 207 at the beginning of 1948 to 362 in all departments at the close of the year.

Mr. Harper states that "we will continue this year to 'shake every bush and turn every stone' in an effort to reach the boys and girls in our community who are not receiving some form of religious education, as well as adult members of the church who are not in some way connected with the teaching program of the church, which is the Sunday school."

Forty-three teachers and workers were named and approved by the Church to help carry on the work this year. Ten of these have registered in the leadership training school being sponsored by the Richland County Council of Churches which began Jan. 10 and will continue each Monday for six weeks.

"With the setting up of a board of education in the church this year, we will be assured more efficient workers not only in the church school but in every department of the Church," said Harper.

A general conference for all workers with dinner at 6:30 is being planned for Thursday evening, Jan. 20 in the dining room of the Church, after which divisional conferences and teachers' meetings will be held each month throughout the year. Rev. S. B. Beauford is pastor of the Mt. Calvary Baptist Church.

Mosquito Bites Helped Elect Woman as Portland's Mayor

PORTLAND, ORE. — (AP) — Mrs. Dorothy McCullough Lee, 47, who became Portland's first woman mayor Jan. 1, is probably the only person ever elected to public office by a mosquito.

Not that the mosquito did it all. Mrs. Lee, elected last spring by a vote larger than all six of her opponents amassed had a 20-year record of successful political life. A vice scandal threw votes her way, too.

But the mosquitoes, which had bitten Portland raw for two scratchy years until Mrs. Lee—as city commissioner — took up a war against them, certainly helped.

There also was a feeling that a woman who swatted out a few billion insects might be able to swat out vice, too.

But Mrs. Lee, though she campaigned for clean government and made a trip east last fall to study police organization, is no dewy-eyed dreamer about that.

"I think by persistent and consistent effort we will be able to get rid of commercialized vice—but it's going to take a long time," she says frankly.

Attorney, housewife, mother of two grammar school children, Portland's new mayor is a striking looking woman with uncommon personal charm and an elastic hand on time.

In the five years she was city commissioner, she delivered an average of five speeches a week; worked full time on the commissioner's job; directed her household—and managed to look like a fashion plate all the time.

She and her husband—W. Scott Lee, a Standard Oil executive—12, and Priscilla, 11. Outside her own career, her husband and children take up all her interest.

"We devote no time at all to purely social things," she says. "The only entertaining I do is to give childrens' parties, and I try to do them up brown."

A naval surgeon's daughter who decided in high school that she wanted to be an attorney, Mrs. Lee has built up a tremendous personal popularity since—as a bride of 25—she first ran for public office.

Institutions Squeezed By High Costs

Income Stable, Expenses Mount

CHICAGO — (AP) — Before they are ripped apart under the strain of today's money troubles, some of the nation's private institutions are having to find ways to strengthen themselves.

Much of the income of university, museums, hospitals, fund-raising organizations and welfare agencies is firmly rooted in prewar endowments, but their expenses are tied to the postwar inflation kite.

However, Booz, Allen and Hamilton, management counsellors, content in a current brochure that they can do nothing about the income side, but they can relieve strain at the other end by advising on how expenses can be reduced.

"Since 1940," the firm said, "nearly every institution has undergone a sharp increase in demand for its services. Higher learning ranks have been swelled to more than twice their prewar size by returned veterans.

"Hospitals have experienced greater use of their facilities as membership in medical prepayment plans has grown more than 500 per cent in the last eight years.

"With 15,000,000 more people in the country than in 1940, other institutions have felt the pinch as well."

Costs of both goods and services have risen more than 60 per cent above the prewar period, but raised rates in few cases have been adequate to match the cost spiral, the firm declared.

On the other hand, it was added, "large fortunes which were once the mainstay of private institutions are being eaten away by federal estate and gift taxes and state inheritance taxes. And the income tax laws put a damper on the accumulation of new fortunes on which private agencies may draw.

"For example, individuals earning more than $100,000 in 1929 retained an aggregate net income after federal taxes of $5,717,000,000. In 1945, those in the same bracket had a total net income after federal taxes of only $453,000,000, less than one-eighth the 1929 figure.

"To complicate the financial situation of institutions, income from investments has been reduced materially in the last two decades. It takes approximately 50 per cent more endowment today to yield the same return obtainable in the 1920s."

The only way out of the dilemma is through good performance and good management, the counsellors declare.

Pick Firm Ground For House Site

Construction engineers advise against building a house on freshly filled land. They warn that a house built on land which is not firm is likely to settle so much that it will be damaged.

Home builders also are cautioned to be careful when selecting rocky ground as a home site. If one side of a house rests on rock and the other side on soil, the house will settle unevenly.

Tips Tell How to Save Money on Construction of Small Houses

★ Large Scale Builders Profiting By Use of New Methods ★

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The commerce department says small scale house builders can save up to 20 per cent on construction costs and it is ready to tell them how.

(Large scale residential builders in metropolitan areas such as New York have adapted such construction short cuts into their methods for some time; but some officials believe the methods are not sufficiently known in other portions of the industry and have not been adapted to small scale builders).

The main ideas involve no magic or any startling new developments. They boil down to assembling the house the easy, efficient way instead of the hard way. For example:

1. Use lumber pre-cut at the lumber yard to the sizes needed and specified in the plans, so the carpenters won't lose a lot of time measuring, sawing, cutting and fitting on the job.

2. Put the wall together (that is, the wooden pieces that make up the wall) flat on the floor, then tip it into position. It's easier and more efficient to work on the floor (or ground) than from scaffolds or ladders.

3. Put up the outer walls and roof first, leaving interior or partition walls until after the floors, ceilings, etc., are completed. It's easier and more economical to do this "other" work and utilities installation before the space is chopped up.

These are just samples of suggestions by which the department says a small scale builder in an average town—the fellow who builds four to ten houses a year—can cut as much as $200 per $1,000 off his construction costs.

REPORT AVAILABLE

These and other ideas are set out in detail in a 130-page "Research Report on Construction Methods," together with drawings and tables. (For sale at $2.50 a copy by the office of technical services, department of commerce, Washington, 25, D. C. Please do not write this newspaper or the Associated Press).

The report gives the result of a study of labor saving construction techniques by the small homes council, University of Illinois, with financial aid from the commerce department's office of technical services.

It doesn't deal with prefabricated housing, but a department official says the study methods will help the small builder meet prefab housing competition.

Three pairs of houses (one frame and one brick house in each pair) were built for the study's purpose by a "small contractor specializing in residential construction" who bid in the work on a cost-plus-fixed fee basis.

The houses were identical in size and plan. The only thing that was varied was construction method. The contractor used union labor and followed the area (Urbana, Ill.) practice of subcontracting many of his trades, plumbing, etc.

The contractor used his customary construction practices on the first pair of houses. After they were well under way, he started the second pair—this time using methods specified by the small homes council.

When the first two pairs were started, the third pair was begun. This time using improved techniques worked out on the previous houses. To compare efficiency of construction, time studies were made of workmen's operations.

METHODS STUDIED

Throughout, the study was limited to assembly methods and to the flow of material from supply yards to the job site.

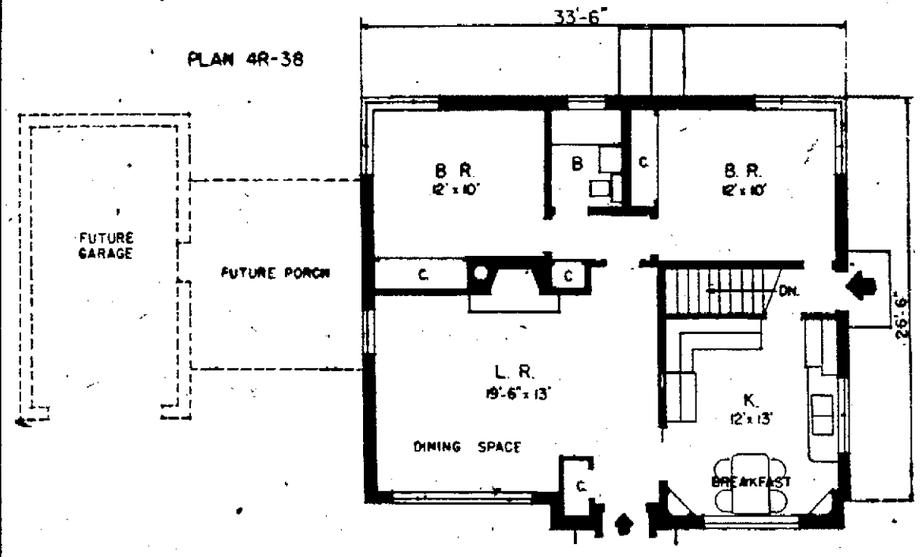
"It was not a comparison, rating or testing of materials," the study says.

"The methods recommended can be used by any contractor who is willing to learn new techniques in order to achieve savings."

Recommendations also call for use of roof trusses and pre-assembled gable ends and of "engineered plans, made to take advantage of every saving from modular or coordinated dimensional control of materials." That is—plan to use full sheets of plywood, make concrete block foundations "come out even" etc., without having to cut odd sizes.

"Complete, accurate and carefully engineered working drawings" are described as "the first step, and one of the most important ones, in reducing building costs."

As to pre-assembly of parts off the site, the report recommends that "windows should be set up, glazed, hung and deliverd to the job—ready for installation in the wall" and "kitchen cabinets should be assembled and hardware applied" before delivery.



FUNCTIONAL PLAN—A minimum house that is functional in plan and attractive in appearance. This is Plan 4R-38 by Elmer Gylleck, architect, 120½ South Grove avenue, Elgin, Ill. The house covers an area of only 888 square feet, and with a complete basement it has a content of 15,700 cubic feet. Dining space is provided in the kitchen, but there also is ample space for a good size dining room table in front of the picture window. A detail of the fireplace design is shown in the upper right. The architect suggests brick veneer on wood construction up to the roof line with wood siding in the gable ends.

MALAYA PLANS NAVY

SINGAPORE — (AP) — Malaya is on the way to having its own navy. Abill to provide for its establishment will be put before the Singapore Legislative Council soon.

Special Needs Considered In Farm Home Construction

The ideal farmhouse differs from an urban home in four ways, according to Walter T. Anicka of Ann Arbor, Mich., who is both an architect and a farmer.

The first difference is that the farmhouse needs a sizeable workroom, Anicka says. He explains that this workroom would contain the cream separator, the egg grader and perhaps a milk cooler and other equipment.

Anicka believes the workroom should be adjacent to the kitchen for the convenience of the farm wife, who generally performs the work for which the room is intended. He adds that this is an excellent location for the farm office.

Another difference is that a farmhouse needs a cleanup room where farm workers can wash and change clothes. Mr. Anicka suggests that the cleanup room adjoin the workroom and have a door leading to the barnyard. The cleanup room should include a lavatory and closets for overalls and other work garments.

Greater usefulness of a large kitchen constitutes a third difference, the architect-farmer says. The farm wife must cook greater quantities of food, because many farm families are larger than families in towns and cities and hired hands increase the number of persons who must be fed. The kitchen should be large enough not to handicap preparation of meals for harvesting crews, Mr. Anicka says.

The fourth difference is a self-contained freezer room. Mr. Anicka recommends that this room be divided into two sections—a deep freeze compartment with a temperature about zero, and a cold storage section with a temperature about 20 degrees.

Except for the four major differences necessitated by the requirements of country living, a farmhouse should be similar in design and construction to a house in town.

In order to keep costs down, Mr. Anicka suggests the use of cinder blocks for sidewalls and asphalt shingles for roofs. Both materials, he points out, are in good supply, inexpensive, fire-resistant and are easily applied.

Economical construction has particular appeal to the farmer, who cannot delay building by renting an apartment or a house but must build when the need arises. Mr. Anicka considers this an additional reason for full use of modern planning, materials and methods in farm building.

Two Galion Juveniles In Crawford Court

BUCYRUS — Juvenile Judge Constance R. Keller meted out a conditional driving rights suspension and a fine at the appearance before her Wednesday of two Galion youths, both 17, turned over to the juvenile court by Galion.

One youth was denied driving privileges for 60 days except for driving to and from work and the other youth was fined $5 and costs on an intoxication charge.

Christ Put In Billfolds By Campaign

Drive's Success Amazes Founder

RICHAMOND, IND. — (AP) — The "Christ in Every Purse" campaign Carl H. Duning started two years ago has spread over most of the United States and into five foreign countries.

The campaign aims to have everyone carry a picture of Christ in his billfold.

The end of World War II found churchmen everywhere saying that the world needs a fundamental change," Duning, a furniture dealer, explains. "It was Christ or chaos."

Duning, who decided to do something about the need in his own community at least, said he long had been impressed by the simple sincerity of the famous "Head of Christ" by Artist Warner E. Sallman.

It was this painting that Duning selected for his evangelism. He obtained a supply of miniature copies of the painting that would fit into a normal billfold.

Duning then wrote a booklet to go with the picture, one of which was pasted on the front. The booklet tells of the aims of the program and the history of the painting.

"All of us carry money, valuable papers and identification cards in our purse." the pamphlet reads. "We are watchful so as not to lose them.

"If Christ is our most treasured possession, why not carry his likeness in our purses?"

The merchant-churchman passed out the pamphlets and pictures in Richmond, but it wasn't long until requests began to come in from other communities and finally from foreign nations.

Duning bought more and more of the pictures. So far he has distributed more than 70,000 and more requests come in by mail daily. The booklets have gone to more than 6,000 people.

Requests have become so heavy that when large orders come in Duning asks the requesting groups to help bear the cost.

He has kept no records on the expense because, he says, "The cost is not important."

Several Kiwanis clubs in Florida, where Duning goes on fishing trips, are assisting and the United Lutheran church Luther Leagues of Ohio recently voted distribution as a state project.

Duning, a member of St. John Lutheran church, said the United Lutheran church brotherhoods are considering the program on a national basis.

Five thousand pictures and some booklets were sent to Oslo, Norway, at the request of the International Lutheran conference, Duning said.

Other church groups—Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian—have taken up the idea.

In Richmond, Duning estimates, 10,000 of the pictures are being carried in billfolds.

Amazed but pleased by the spread of his idea, he said he is still stopped on the streets by people asking for more pictures.

India Seeks French Land

(Editor's Note: Pondicherry, key to French India is one of the five small settlements which India wants to take over and France wishes to retain. Steven V. David of the Associated Press staff in New Delhi was the first foreign news correspondent to visit Pondicherry in several years.)

PONDICHERRY, French India — (AP) — Looking at Pondicherry, you wonder why India and France are arguing about it.

Pondicherry, on the southeast coast of India is the administrative center for 200 square miles of territory known as French India. It is not important commercially and, by treaty, cannot be used as a military base. There is not much here France would miss.

The same goes for the other four French settlements in India —Karikal and Yanam, on the east coast; Mahe, a village on the west coast; and Chandernagore in the heart of Bengal, 30 miles from Calcutta.

Nor would India, which wants to make all five settlements part of its territory, gain much except the satisfaction that another foreigner had been removed from the subcontinent.

Whether French India will remain that or merge with India is to be decided by plebiscite. The time and procedure for the plebiscite will be determined by municipal assemblies, which have been elected in all but Mahe. An uprising of pro-Indian factions in Mahe forced postponement of the election there.

Pondicherry itself is a strangely quiet city with a colorful past. There was a time when more than one ship a month stopped at this port. Smuggling was common and French wines could be had at bargain prices. Those days are gone now. Pondicherry seems to have fallen asleep.

A GALA PRELUDE to the colorful Chamber of Commerce banquet Friday evening at the Coliseum was the cocktail party held at the clubroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Guests included visiting army and navy personnel, presidents of local manufacturing companies, executives of the local and state Chamber of Commerce and newspaper publishers and columnists.

The Alan Tappans had as their guests Brig. Gen. E. H. Zistel and Mrs. Zistel of Cleveland, Major General Leo M. Kreber and Mrs. Kreber and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Kenneth Cooper, all of Columbus. Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Pryor were entertaining their guests, Captain F. L. Riddle and Captain J. C. Gebhard, both of the Ninth Naval district, Great Lakes, Ill.

The informal party gave Mansfielders and visitors an opportunity for an hour of renewing acquaintances and genial visiting.

Hosts for the occasion were several individuals representing the Chamber of Commerce and the Mansfield Manufacturers club. Seventy-five were in attendance.

Mr. Tappan was instrumental in bringing the 164th Fighter Squadron of the Air National Guard, which is part of the 55th Wing, to the Mansfield airport. He also headed a delegation from here to Washington to obtain airline service for Mansfield.

Brig. Gen. Zistel, who holds an executive position with the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, is commanding officer of the 55th Wing, Air National Guard, which includes Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia and part of Michigan. He assisted Mr. Tappan in bringing the fighter squadron here.

Major General Leo M. Kreber of Fort Hayes, Columbus, was recently appointed as adjutant general in charge of the national guard by Governor Frank Lausche. Brig. Gen. Kenneth Cooper, also of Fort Hayes, was named assistant adjutant general.

Captain R. L. Riddle and Captain J. C. Gebhard, who were guests of the M. H. Pryors, are stationed at Great Lakes. Capt. Riddle, USN, is assistant chief of staff for the naval reserve of the Ninth Naval district, and Capt. Gebhard, CEC, USN, is the district civil engineer of that district. Mr. Pryor, a former commander in the navy, is a member of the naval advisory board, which was organized in 1946. He was influential in bringing the Mansfield Naval Training Center here.

Guests, in the newspaper field, included Eugene C. Pulliam, Indianapolis, Ind., president and publisher of the Star Publishing company and president of Central Newspapers, Inc., who was the principal speaker at the banquet in the Coliseum; Roy D. Moore, Canton, president of Brush Moore Newspapers, Inc., and John Jones, columnist for the Columbus Dispatch, Columbus.

Representatives of the Chamber of Commerce were H. C. Atkinson, executive vice president of the Ohio C. of C., and his wife, of Columbus; Eugene Carr, president of the Canton Chamber of Commerce, and E. T. Causer, vice president of the Canton Chamber of Commerce.

Others of importance who were present were Dean Dickerson, president of the Chamber of Commerce and president of Frosted Foods, and Mrs. Dickerson; John Routzon, secretary-manager of the local C. of C., and Mrs. Routzon; Harry Soulen, retiring president of the C. of C., and president of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, and Mrs. Soulen; Millard H. Pryor, past president of the Mansfield Manufacturers' club, and president of the Barnes Manufacturing company, and Mrs. Pryor; C. L. VanDerau, general chairman of the 37th annual banquet and works manager of the Westinghouse Electric corporation, and a past president of the C. of C., and Mrs. VanDerau; Carlton Fernyak, new president of the Mansfield Retail Merchants association, second vice president of the C. of C., and vice president of the Mansfield Typewriter company, and Mrs. Fernyak; Glenn L. Bierly, president of the Mansfield Manufacturers' club, and president and treasurer of the Mansfield Brass and Aluminum, and Mrs. Bierly; C. E. Nail, national councillor for the Chamber of Commerce and president of Lumbermens Mutual Insurance company.

Whenever ladies gather in a group, the subject of conversation always turns to the latest styles and colors in clothes. On Friday evening at the cocktail party the newest fashions and creations were present.

Mrs. Alan Tappan chose a marine blue long sleeved wool. At the neckline she had placed a gold scrip pin. With this she wore a brown velvet and satin hat, matching brown suede shoes and carried a brown leather purse with a gold chain strap. Mrs. E. H. Zistel wore a black sheer wool suit with crystal buttons. Her sheer blouse matched in color, and she wore a three-strand pearl necklace. Her accessories were black.

Mrs. Carlton Fernyak was attired in a dark brown crepe one-piece dress with blue inserts at the neckline which formed a pressed bow. Her beaver hat was topped with an iridescent green feather.

A sea blue crepe with a drape effect at the side was worn by Mrs. Clarence VanDerau. A gold sequin trim adorned the left shoulder. Her accessories were blue and black in color. The crown of Mrs. VanDerau's spring hat was blue with a band of pink and blue flowers in the front. Mrs. H. C. Atkinson selected a coffee brown suit with a bronze bugle beaded front. The jacket was finished in back in a fishtail design and the skirt was straight. She wore a feather hat.

Her hat was of large plumes framing the face. Mrs. Kenneth Cooper wore a brown crepe dress for the occasion. On the shoulder was a sequin flower trim. She wore a rhinestone necklace and light hat with a plume and veiling to match her dress.

Mrs. Robert Huge picked out a stoplight red crepe dress with three-quarter length sleeves and a narrow belt which tied in front. Her hat was a small black crown which she sat on the back of her head. The veil matched, as did the rest of her accessories. Mrs. Louis Bromfield was attired in black crepe with a yellow scarf at her neck. Her mink hat matched her full length fur coat.

Elephant grey was the color of Mrs. Dean Dickerson's wool. The fly black insert at the neckline was of black. Her accessories were also black. Mrs. Glenn Bierly chose a grey double buttoned suit trimmed with a contrasting Chinese red. Her pert hat matched the suit.

Mrs. M. H. Pryor selected a dark green silk dress with covered buttons fastened at the shoulders. She wore a long one-strand pearl necklace. Her Watteau hat was tied under the chin with a band of black veiling.

Miss Velma Vaughn wore a five-strand pearl necklace on her grey wool frock. The sleeves of the dress were three quarter and sheered at one side. The skirt was tiered with narrow lines of scallops. She wore a red hat with a black feather in the front. Mrs. R. M. Calene chose a royal blue dress with a black detailed work across the front. Mrs. Roy Vaughn selected a green crepe, short sleeved. The bib front was squared. Her grey hat was topped with a grey and coral plume.

Mrs. John G. Routzon looked charming in a black crepe with a slim skirt. Her small hat was placed on the back of her head and the crown was light orchid with a wide black brim. Mrs. Harry Soulen's crepe dress was black with a gold pin at the neckline. Her hat was black and worn off the face. AUER-MALONEY RITES AT ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH

Miss Mary E. Auer Becomes Bride of Bryan F. Moloney; Couple to Live In Crestline After Trip.

CRESTLINE—A pretty wedding, solemnized before the altar of St. Joseph's Catholic church Saturday morning, Jan. 8, at 8:30 o'clock, united in marriage Miss Mary E. Auer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Auer, 210 North Wiley street, and Bryan F. Moloney of Crestline, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Leo Moloney, Prospect street, Marion.

The double-ring ceremony preceded the nuptial high mass celebrated by Rev. Fr. Phillips, assistant pastor.

Bouquets of pompoms in gold altar vases against a background of ferns and palms, decorated the altar. Mrs. Ward Sutter presided at the organ, and accompanied the children's choir of the church.

The bride wore an ivory satin gown, styled with a fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline and long sleeves which formed points over the hands. The circular skirt was arranged in a drape-effect which fell in folds at the side forming a bustle across the back of the gown, and extended into a long cathedral-style train. Her veil of French silk illusion was finger-tip length, attached to a tiara of satin, embellished with white shells. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls and she carried a bouquet of white Calla lilies and white roses.

Miss Beatrice O'Heron, who served as maid-of-honor, wore a peacock blue taffeta gown, fashioned with a Peter Pan collar, a tight-fitting bodice, from which fell a full skirt. The gown had three-quarter-length sleeves. She carried a Colonial bouquet of American Beauty rosebuds, and wore an arrangement of American Beauty velvet with ostrich tips on her head.

The bride's mother wore a black printed dress with black accessories, and a shoulder corsage of camellias.

Jack Moloney, student at Dayton university, was his brother's best man, while the ushers were Bill Herman and Frank Auer jr.

Following the wedding, dinner was served at Greenlawn for members of the immediate families and the bridal party. A tiered cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, centered the table which was appointed in white.

From two until five p. m. a reception for 100 guests was held at the Auer home, with Miss Ethel Menring and Mrs. Christman of Bucyrus presiding.

After a trip through the southern states, the couple will reside at the home of the bride's parents until their apartment is completed.

For traveling, the bride wore a green dress, topped with a squirrel coat, and black accessories. She wore the rosebud corsage from her bridal bouquet.

Following the rehearsal Friday evening, a party was held at the home of the bride's parents, at which time gifts were presented by the couple to their attendants.

The new Mrs. Moloney attended St. Joseph's school and graduated from Crestline high school and Mansfield Business college. She is employed in the payroll department at the Shelby Air depot.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Marion high school, served four years in the U.S. Army, three of which were spent overseas.

BELLVILLE—A single-ring ceremony at the home of the bride, Jan. 8 at 10:30 a. m., united in marriage Miss Shirley Elaine Weaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Weaver of Bellville, and Alfred W. Laser, son of Alva Laser, R. D. 3, Shelby.

Rev. A. H. McLain, pastor of the Presbyterian church, officiated.

The bride wore a royal blue satin street-length dress, with black and white accessories, and a white orchid. Her maid-of-honor was the bridegroom's sister, Miss Della Laser, who wore a dark green crepe dress with black accessories and a corsage of yellow rosebuds.

Howard Guthrie of Shelby, cousin of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Immediately after the ceremony a luncheon was served to members of the immediate families.

After a short wedding trip the couple has returned to their home, 186 South Main street in Bellville. Mrs. Laser is a graduate of Bellville high school and a member of the Treble choir of Mansfield. LIMA LADY LOSES 88½ POUNDS WITH THIS HOME RECIPE
Mrs. C. M. Wright, 124 West 5th St., loses weight without dieting.

"I have tried many reducing preparations but nothing ever helped me until I tried Rennel" writes Mrs. Wright. "Since I started taking Rennel I have eaten as much as I wanted and anything that I wanted yet I have lost weight and feel much better than I have in ten years. Before taking Rennel my excess weight kept me tired out all of the time. I am so happy that I tried Rennel because the other products that I have tried didn't help me at all. My druggist recommended Rennel to me and I wouldn't be without it."

Rennel is the original grapefruit juice recipe for taking off ugly fat. It's simple, go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Rennel. Pour the contents into a pint bottle—add enough unsweetened grapefruit juice to fill the bottle, take just two tablespoons twice a day. That's all there is to it. If the very first bottle doesn't show you the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves—if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen hips, calves and ankles; just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. You need never know a hungry moment while taking Rennel, no starvation diet, no printed diet list to buy, no expensive vitamins to fortify you against weakness while going hungry, for you WON'T be hungry. —Adv.

Horoscope

For Monday, January 17
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

Monday's horoscope holds influences in which elders, home and feminine interests are uppermost in connection with business or financial endeavors concentrated upon long-range and enduring culminations. Contracts and agreements made in such affairs should be prudently evaluated and not overinfluenced by domestic, social or romantic activities to the hazard of realistic issues and future benefits.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of promising pleasant and long-range benefits, in which home, personal or romantic occasions may call for celebrations, gift-giving and offerings of long-range and stable worth. Elders or their interests may be to the fore, with many pleasant and prosperous tokens of appreciation or reward. Even business activities may revolve about such family ties, property, rewards for faithful service. Solid investments gathered by thrift, good judgment and economy, are in line for gracious recognition.

A child born on this day has rich promise of a pleasant and happy career, largely in reward for merit, its own sound abilities and sterling character.

Soak clothes in cool or lukewarm water rather than cold water, for cold water may cause the fabric mesh to close and hold the dirt.

THREE LITTLE MERMAIDS—Pat Jackson, Nancy Smith and Betsy Clark on the ladder of the Senior high pool after a swim.

NIMBLE JOINTS and coordinating muscles make these "tumblers" one of more interesting groups of the entire girls' athletic program at Senior high. They often present programs at school assemblies. Under the direction of department teachers, they have perfected their "acts" to a polished rhythm.

IT'S A LONG REACH for Billie Bride and Caroline Cline.

Amelia Bloomer's 'Revolution' Still In Progress

MHS Girls Taking Big Role In Athletics

By NITA BRANSON

When Amelia Jenks Bloomer defied convention back in the 80s and adopted the "bloomer" costume for cycling, she had no way of knowing that her rebellion paved the way for the modern and unrestrictive gymnasium outfit among women today.

Miss Bloomer might have been slightly shocked at the brevity of the shorts girls at Senior high school wear during their gym classes or at the even more brief costumes they wear when swimming, but even the redoubtable Amelia could not have helped but envy the ease and grace with which Senior girls take to the gymn floor or the pool.

There is probably not a prettier picture than a Senioir high girl, her long legs tanned by the sun, reaching for a basket or diving gracefully into the big pool.

There are many phases to the athletic program among girls out at Senior high. But few, probably, realize the scope and completeness of that program because so much emphasis is placed on athletics for the boys.

Miss Marjorie Boals, who heads the department and Miss Louis Ferris, the assistant, have a full and busy day. That day starts at least three times each week at 7 a. m. when the intramural teams in volleyball practice in the gymnasium, because there is no other time during the day when the gym is available.

Getting up in the dark winter hours so that they can arrive at the school at 7 is pretty inconvenient for the teams but most of them get there and are enthusiastic about it.

"There are 140 signed up for this particular bit of gym, Miss Boalas said, "and there is an average of 80 at each of the three mornings. Considering the inconvenience, that's pretty good."

There are about 600 girls who take gym classes in addition to the special groups, according to Miss Boals.

"There is the bowling club. We have 14 teams of girls who bowl once each week at the Colony club. Each of these teams have six girls. There's a varsity volley ball group, which I expect to play the different schools in the area. That team is made up of 22 girls. We played Galion here on Jan. 25 and we expect to play others later In the spring we have softball and archery This week we expect to set up basketball teams and will start practicing on Jan. 24." Miss Boals commented.

SWIMMERS ACTIVE

The swimming department is one of the most interesting phases of the program. There are classes for beginners and advanced pupils. Then there are the girls of the Swan club, the experts, who can do a fancy stunt or two without the blink of an eyelash.

The Swan club has 25 members and in addition to their excellence in the water sport, they are as nice a bunch of "pulchritude" as a photographer could wish to find.

Miss Boals has big ambitions for her Swan club

"I hope we can go other places for exhibitions," she asserted. "Recently some of the girls were at Bowling Green for their advanced swimming courses They have excellent facilities there and we learned a great deal at their work shop."

From among the many groups who take gym, there are two special organizations, the Girls' Athletic association and the Leaders' club.

"The girls who make the GAA must earn 100 points as a starter," Miss Boals explained. "From there they can work toward awards The highest is 2,000 for which a girl gets her red and white letters. There are 100 points each to be made from junior and senior life saving, skating, bicycling, skiing, hiking, tobogganning and many other phases."

President of the GAA is Jean Salsbury, with Minnie Bradley as vice president, Mary Nixon, secretary; Carolyn Cline, treasurer and Nancy Sorenson, program chairman.

The Leaders club includes those girls whose gym work is so expert that they are assigned to help teach. They are chosen according to their ability in gymnasium but there are other considerations as well, Miss Boals said. They must show excellence in scholarship, cooperation and other desirable traits. The members of this club are voted into membership. At the present time there are 30 members and Nancy Sorenson is the president.

One of the "prettiest" groups is the tumbling class, those girls with the nimble legs and arms whose joints can be maneuvered into striking position with ease and dexterity.

Until this year, according to Miss Boals, girls' athletics in high schools throughout the state have been quite restricted. But this year the rules were relaxed to allow them to play three outside games a year.

It may not be long, at the rate they're going, until the boys in the athletic department at Senior high find they have some keen rivals and it won't be the football teams from other Ohio towns.

For the "gals" are getting ready to "rise and shine" in some interscholastic games.

Pupils Give Three Plays

Three one-act plays will be presented to members of the Mansfield City Teachers association at Senior high school tomorrow at 3:50 p. m. by members of the Senior high school dramatic and speech classes.

Earl Heasley's pupils will present "Afraid of the Dark," a psychological drama of the death cell in a prison.

Miss Martha Eckert will direct her students in two short plays. One will be "Let's Wake Up," with Jean A. Robinson, Tina Taylor, Lloyd Lewis, Dick Elliot, Joe Peterson and Carlton Perrine in the cast.

The other will be "Suicide" with Lewis and Patricia Jackson in the cast This is a story of the waterfront on a damp, foggy night and is a satire on people who contemplate suicide.

Following the presentation of the program, the association members will have a business meeting and hear reports from the Ohio Education association conference by C. A. Divelbiss and John C. Stout, delegates.

This part of the meeting will be in charge of Raymond Dent, president of the association.

Study Home Program

The Richland County Child Welfare board will meet Feb. 3 with county officials to consider recommendations of the state welfare department for improvements at the County Children's Home.

The session will serve to acquaint two new members of the welfare board and a new county commissioner with recommendations submitted last fall following a survey by the state welfare department.

It's expected that a decision will be reached on the extent to which the county can adopt the program outlined by the state.

Recommendations called for modernizing of the present home building, reduction of its population by one-third by placing more children in foster homes and creation of a community welfare council to coordinate the work of county agencies on behalf of children.

Invited to the meeting Feb 3 are the county commissioners. Juvenile Judge Stuart H. Cramer, Mrs Virginia Ferguson of the state welfare department, who prepared the survey report, and Vernon Lawrence, president of the Richland County Child Welfare council, which group made recommendations to the commissioners in the light of the survey.

Pro Grid Team Planned for Mansfield Next Fall

Tygers Squeeze Past Springfield, 37-36

Will Form League At Meet

Mansfield will have a professional football team next year and may play in a league of Ohio cities if present plans materialize.

Danny Markowitz, former Philadelphia Eagle player, heads a group of Mansfield business men who will sponsor a pro club here for the 1949 season. Mansfield has not had a semi-pro or pro club for several years.

Preliminary plans for the pro club have been completed and Markowitz is already ordering uniforms for the team which will be known as the Mansfield Rangers. Practice is scheduled to begin in August and the group hopes to find a Mansfield man to coach the team.

PLANS MEETING

As for league plans, Markowitz will call an organization meeting sometime next month. Teams from Bucyrus, Sandusky and Chelby have already expressed interest in the circuit. All three of the cities had semi-pro clubs last season.

Other clubs will be contacted in Massillon, Columbus, Marion, Canton and Painesville. Massillon, which did not lose to an Ohio team in 1948, would like to play in a league of top notch clubs but has made no committments.

League games would be played Sunday afternoons. Site of the Mansfield home games has not been determined.

PLAYED WITH O'BRIEN

Markowitz played for the Eagles three years when such players as Davey O'Brien, Herman Hickman and Dave Smukler were members of the team. He played center at Carnegie Tech and while in service was a member of the Ft. Riley team. He made the all-midwestern service eleven.

Markowitz was commissioner of semi-pro football in western Pennsylvania in 1946 and coached the Penn State pro grid champions the same year.

Markowitz is Pepsi-Cola distributor in Mansfield.

Any Mansfield or area players wishing to try out for the Mansfield club may contact Markowitz at 208 Marlow road.

Stuff About Cage Booing, Notes Off The Stuffer's Cuff

By Fred Tharp
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

BOOING AND GENERAL unsportsmanlike conduct towards the officials seemingly has become the rule rather than the exception with a great many basketball fans. . . . Now we know that all officials are not perfect; theirs is too tough a job to catch all of the infractions. . . . All high school "refs" must hold a card with the OHSAA and they are required to attend a percentage of rules meetings each season. . . . These two phases do not insure the best in whistle-tooting but they help. . . . The rest is up to the officials themselves and the schools that hire them. . . . Several Ohio school heads have definite ideas how to curb the growing unrest towards the "refs." . . . At Delphos St. John's, the Rev. Edward Herr interrupts the game at the first sign of misbehavior by the fans. . . . He takes over the PA system and announces the game will cease immediately if the booing does not stop. . . . Needless to say, most cage fans don't want to see their team lose via forfeiture so the derogatory noise stops at once. . . . Ten days ago at Kenton, players of the Kenton and Ada team had a few words, started a scrap and the adults joined in. . . . Police had to be called on to quell the riot. . . . So Paul Oaklief, Kenton principal, has announced that all Kenton games will be played behind locked doors if the fans' behavior does not improve. . . . In baseball, ribbing the umpire is part of the show but it does less than nothing to improve the caliber of basketball. . . . And officials can penalize the teams by calling technical fouls if the fans are vociferous in their disapproval of decisions. . . . Fans must also remember that the "tooters" are hired and paid by the home team with the okay of the visiting schools. . . . Which means that athletic officials of both schools were in on the deal to select the officials.

CUFF STUFF: The Tyger booster club has purchased 220 letters to go to members of grade school touch football teams in Mansfield. . . . Comes a postcard from a reader who wonders if Mansfield Relays are open to Class A and Class B high schools. . . . Yes, the Relays are open to any high school student or team. . . . Bill Eccles, former Tyger footballer, has pared down from a light-heavyweight fighter last winter to a welterweight. . . . He lost to Tom Weaver in the finals of the 1948 Friendly House heavyweight division and beat Tom in the Senior high lightheavy division. . . . Tomorrow's fight at the F-H will be Bill's second as a welter. . . . The grapevine tells us that Bup Rearick, the Canton McKinley football and basketball coach, was No. 2 on the list of coaches for the Cincinnati grid job which went to Sid Gillman. . . . If that's true, we wonder if Bup will put in a bid for the vacant Miami spot. . . . After Friday's wild contest (61 personal fouls were called) between the basketball teams of Senior high and New Philadelphia, Tyger Coach Vern Hoffman remarked, "More fouls were called in that game than in any I've seen in 20 years of coaching." . . . Charles Brown, the young "figure" expert at Senior high, has compiled a complete chart of Bengal shooting for the season. . . . Including the Ashland game, Norb Shibinski and Ken McCally top the averages. . . . Both have made 45 per cent of their shots, Shibinski sinking 44 of 98 and McCally, nine of 20. . . . Willie Fowler has a mark of 36.8 per cent, and Jimmy Anderson, 35 per cent. . . . The American Legion junior baseball program will include about 14,500 teams this summer. . . . . Two hundred and forty-three major leaguers of last year were Legion graduates while 29 played in the all-star game and 32 in the world series . . .3,457 minor leaguers came up through the Legion ranks.

Two Carnivals Hampered By Lack of Ice

Lack of suitable ice on area rinks continues to put a serious crimp in practice schedules for Mansfield's two "blade" events.

First of the two shows is scheduled next Saturday when Harry Mehock's public school skaters are listed to take the ice at North Lake park. Then Sunday, Jan. 30, the News-Journal Silver Skates carnival is listed on the same arena.

More than 300 skaters are expected to compete in the events.

However, Stan Kamen, director of the N-J racing, and Mehock said last night that they would schedule meetings early this week to determine a possible change in dates. Both men figure that the ice shows will have to be moved back.

Entries are still coming in slowly for the N-J ice carnival. The latest batch includes: Wayne Charles Swank, 12, 215 Harker street; Alice Mae Baumberger, 15, Route 2; Hugh O'Donnell, 12, 191 Lind avenue; Nora Jean Bertoch, 12, 269 Parkway drive; Jimmy Bertoch, 10, 269 Parkway drive and Don Nash, 11, 418 Lida street.

Deadline for entering the N-J nine-division program is midnight Jan. 26. First place finishers in each division will get a miniature silver skate while the top five will get ribbons. The official entry blank will be found on the next page.

Barons Defeated

CLEVELAND —(AP)— The lowly Philadelphia Rockets pulled the big surprise of the American Hockey league season last night by defeating the Cleveland Barons on their home ice, 6 to 4, before 11,015 fans.

Ontario Faces Two Tilt Sked

By CHARLEY STINE

Into the hands of Union and Lucas goes the unenviable job of attempting to stop the rampaging Ontario Warriors this week.

Both will have the advantage of their own floor but only Lucas, currently in fourth place in Richland county league standings, is considered a serious threat. Union meets the Warriors Tuesday night and Lucas Friday.

LUCAS IS HOT

After a poor start the Lucas team has developed into one of the most dangerous clubs in the circuit. Lucas has won five out of six games since it dropped a 48-23 decision earlier at Ontario. Every team in the loop has fallen prey to W. S. Barger's quintet except Bellville.

One other game Friday could turn into an upset—Butler at Lexington. Butler, loser of eight straight games early in the season, has won three of its last four while Lexington has been in a slump for over a month.

The Minutemen have lost four of their last seven games.

Other games set for Friday send Union to Bellville and Plymouth to Shiloh.

SCORING LEADERS

Ontario's Howard Sunnucks still leads the league in scoring with a 15.7 percentage although Desmond Donnerwirth of Plymouth slipped one point ahead in the totals. Ontario has played one less game but will make it up this week and undoubtedly forge Sunnucks back into the front in both departments.

In percentage, Lucas Jack Stephenson, playing in only six games, has a 14.8 mark while Donneworth has 14.0.

Dick Titlow of Butler made the biggest advance of the week as he moved into third place with 106 points. Dick Dill of Lexington remains in fourth with 105.

Lexington Cagers Blast Cardington For 11th Victory

LEXINGTON—Lexington high's Minutemen had things pretty much as they pleased here last night as they racked up a 58-35 victory over Cardington. It was the 11th victory in 16 games for Lexington.

Center Dick Dill as usual led the Lexington scoring with 19 points. Nine members of the team broke into the scoring.

Cardington brought a fine reserve team and handed Lexington its second defeat in 14 games, 39-24.

Hogan Fires 68 To Take Lead

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. — (AP) — Little Ben Hogan, always the man to beat, tossed a four under par 68 at the field yesterday, to jump into an early lead in the Bing Crosby golf tournament with a two-round total of 138. He had 70 yesterday.

The National Open and P. G. A. champion, four shots off the pace as the second round started, chalked up a 36-32 for the tree-lined Monterey Peninsula Country club course. Par for the layout is 35-37—72.

Hogan displaced both Bill Nary of Phoenix, Ariz., the first round leader in the professional division of the $10,000 tournament, and Jim Ferrier, San Francisco, who paced the field yesterday at Cypress Point with a 66, slipped to a 73 today. Ferrier's 70 gave him a total of 139.

Kentucky Rolls

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — (AP) — Kentucky's national collegiate basketball champions piled up a prohibitive first half lead to defeat the Tennessee Volunteers, 66-51, before a capacity throng of 3,200 here last night.

UP AND COMING—Although it dropped its first six league games, the Butler high basketball team may be a deciding factor in the second half race. Butler has won three of its last four games and plays Lexington Friday. Lined up above, l to r, are: Coach Vern Chaney, Harold Workman, Don Strong, Eldon Koopert, Charles Coon, Ivan Hollar, Bill Allen, Junior Beale, Dave Weber, Don Kirkpatrick, Tod Brokaw, and Dick Titlow. Schnittker-less Ohio State Falls Before Iowa, 53-49

IOWA CITY, Ia. —(AP)— Iowa shook off Ohio State's late threat to upset the Buckeyes 53-49 last night for its first Big Nine basketball victory in three games.

Ohio State was without the services of Dick Schnittker, leading conference scorer who was hospitalized with a throat infection.

Bob Raidiger, the six-foot-four inch center from Waverly led the Bucks with 12 points.

Iowa hustled to a 32-26 halftime lead behind the sharp-shooting of Tony Guzowski, who made 13 points, including six field goals.

The Hawks pushed to a 41-31 margin, the widest of the contest, after nine minutes in the last half before Ohio State counter-charged with a basket flurry. The Buckeyes drew up to 42-41 with eight minutes to play. That was as close as they came.

Ohio got off to a fast start in quest of its second conference win in theee games. The Buckeyes boasted a 10-4 advantage in the first five minutes. But Iowa gradually cut down the Buckeye advantage and surged into a 12-all tie in the next five minutes. Al Weiss put Iowa ahead with a free throw and the Hawks never lost the lead.

Schnittker was expected to be confined here for at least a week.

Pro Football Peace Talk Is Set This Week

CHICAGO — (AP) — It will be either merger or more box-office mauling between the 29-year-old national football league and the three-season-old all-America conference here next week.

The national loop meets Thursday in a regularly scheduled slate-making and rules-studying session.

The All-America gathers Tuesday with an air of secrecy as far as a formal agenda is concerned, but undoubtedly fixing for a showdown among owners on a projected merger with the NFL.

Between Tuesday and Thursday, there seems litle question that a five-member AAC committee and national spokesmen will resume "peace" talks which started and fizzled at Philadelphia last month.

The All-America likes to regard any possible merger as a welding of two major leagues with at least four AAC clubs remaining in business.

The national loop, on the other hand, is inclined to treat the AAC peace move simply as a surrender, terms of which involve taking only the champion Cleveland Browns and San Francisco 49'ers into the NFL fold for a 12-team circuit.

Cleveland Trades Rights to Whisler

CLEVELAND —(AP)—The Cleveland Browns announced yesterday that they have acquired Joe Spencer, regular right tackle for the Brooklyn Dodgers last season in return for draft rights to two players.

Brooklyn was given the rights to end Scott Beasley of Nevada and Fullback Joe Whisler of Ohio State.

A 238-pounder, Spencer captained the Oklahoma A & M team in 1947. He lives in Stillwater, Okla.

Stall Out In Final Minutes

Stalling through most of the fourth quarter, the Mansfield Senior high school basketball team nosed out a tall Springfield quintet here last night, 37 to 36.

Deviating from their usual brand of ball, the Tygers played a slow, cautious game after running up a big lead in the first quarter. Senior high was ahead most of the game but actually had to come from behind in the last half to keep alive their home court winning streak, which has now reached 16 straight.

With the fourth period only half gone, the two teams were tied at 34 points. Then big Norb Shibinski dumped in a rebound shot and the Bengals started stalling in earnest. Rog Crabtree connected from the foul line for the invaders with only 2:38 remaining in the game.

DEMYAN HITS FOULS

Ed Demyan hit his third straight foul to run the Tyger lead back to 37-35, but Jack Sallee sliced the margin to one point with a free throw with 90 seconds remaining. Paul "Pinkie" Ferguson missed from the gratis line 30 seconds later.

From then on, however, the Tygers did not take a chance. They took two fouls out of bounds to hang on. The desperate Wildcats fouled Shibinski just as the game ended, but the big senior missed the gift shot as the capacity crowd streamed on the floor.

Springfield tossed a tight zone defense at the Bengals to start the game but the Tygers moved through it at will. All five starters cashed in points to give Mansfield a 16-to-3 lead. Slender Jimmy Anderson hit three baskets in the first four minutes to pace the drive.

The Wildcats switched to a man-for-man in the late stages of the initial quarter and the Tygers suddenly began missing shots. They led at the intermission, 18 to 9, and rebuilt the lead two points when Demyan opened the second heat with a bunny fielder.

DEFENSE FALTERS

The Tygers suffered a complete defensive lapse as Springfield slipped free under the basket to notch eight straight points. Ken McCally flipped in a gratis shot and Shibinski hit twice from in close to give Mansfield a 25-20 halftime advantage.

Anderson threw in a long one-hander at the outset of the third period but Springfield immediately went on a eight-point tear to take the lead, 28 to 27. McCally knotted the count with another free throw and Demyan's rebounder with three minutes left in the period put the Tygers back in the van.

A one-hander by Sallee cut the lead to 32-30 at the quarter. Anderson's sixth field goal was quickly nullified by a pivot shot by Sallee and a "bunny" by Charlie Winkle. That put the score at 34 -34.

FOULS PAID OFF

Anderson and Sallee were the top scorers with 12 markers but for once Senior high won a game from the foul line Springfield made 15 fielders to 14 for the Tygers. On foul shots, Senior high had nine of 18 and the visitors, six of 11

In the first quarter the Tygers hit on six of 15 shots but could make only eight of 39 the rest of the way

The slow, cautious game displayed by Vern Hoffman's team kept the fouls at a minimum and only 26 were called That's a far cry from the 61 called in the Senior high-New Philadelphia game Friday night.

Mansfield won its seventh sophomore game in eight starts in the preliminary by a 34-26 score. George Shoulders, the be-spectacled little guard, led the Tygers in scoring with nine points and riddled the Springfield defense with his dribbling

The Invaders presented a very tall aggregation but never led at any time in the game. Mansfield jumped to the front, 13-8 at the end of the first quarter and increased the margin to 21-13 at the half

Junior Baseball Party Today

First Hot Stove league junior baseball party of 1949 is scheduled this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Sons of Herman hall.

The party will be a treat of the Sons of Herman Horse club and will be open to any youngster who played on a Mansfield junior ball team last summer. There will be hot dogs and soft drinks for the youngsters following a showing of a pair of motion pictures.

The movies will be "World Series of 1948" and "Double Play Kings of Baseball." Combined running time of the two films is one hour. It will be the first time either movie has been shown in Mansfield.

Two other showings of the films has been scheduled tomorrow by the Horse club. At 7 p. m. Sons of Herman and Hot Stove members are invited to attend while a 9:30 p. m. showing is for Herman bowlers and their guests.

All three programs are free but will be limited to 300 persons.

Members of the Cleveland Indians will be prominent in each film. Of course, the Indians defeated the Boston Braves in the series. Manager Lou Boudreau and Joe Gordon of the Tribe are one of four double play combos featured in the "King's" movie.

Initial 1949 meeting of the Mansfield chapter of the Hot Stove league has been scheduled Thursday at 7:30 p. m. at the municipal courtroom at the city building. The Hot Stove organization is a group of sport-minded individuals who like to "bull" about sports. All 1948 members are welcome.

Coaches Put Foot In Football

NEW YORK —(AP)— It looks as if the nation's college football coaches have put the foot back into football.

An Associated Press opinion sampling of several prominent college grid mentors on the rules changes instituted at the recent intercollegiate rules committee meeting in Palm Springs, Calif., brought out this unique angle yesterday.

In a move aimed at sideline quarterbacking, the committee ruled that as many substitutions as desirable may be made whenever the ball changes hands. The committee threw out the old rule permitting a single substitution when the clock was running.

So—if a situation screams for a punt, the coach had better have a good kicker in the lineup. If he doesn't, he's got to waste a time out to insert the punter.

Coaches generally agreed the new sub rules would lend greater emphasis to the two-platoon system popularized by Michigan and Army, and give more employment to more players. Consequently, they foresaw larger squads. Schools with small squads likely would be at a disadvantage. South Carolina's Rex Enright commented:

"The change has made it very difficult for a small squad with only one punter to return this individual to the game when a punting situation arrives. It is impossible, however, through rule changes, to make the small squad strong."
